The New-Brunswick, which left New-Orleans on Sunday, 22d, arrived yesterday morning, and the McClellan, which left on the same day, arrived last evening, bringing details of Admiral Farragut's gallant attack upon the rebel batteries at Port Hudson, on Saturday, March 14, the army, under Gen. Banks, proceeding by land.

Just before dark, on Saturday, 14th, the Hartford, (flagship,) with Admiral Farragut on board, advanced to the attack, accompanied by the Albatross gunboat; the Richmond and Genesee followed; next the Monongahela and Kineo, and finally, the Mississippi. The Essex and Sachem remained behind, with six mortar-vessels. In this order they attempted to pass Port Hudson, when the batteries opened fire on them, and a terrific engagement ensued, lasting from 10:45 P. M. of Saturday, to about daybreak of Sunday.

The flag-ship Hartford and the Albatross got safely by the batteries. The Richmond had nearly passed the upper battery, when her safety-valve was injured, compelling her to drop down to the fleet. The Monongahela also got near the upper battery—when her crank pin becoming heated, she was unable to stem the current and returned. The Mississippi ran aground at the bend immediately opposite Port Hudson. She at once became the target for a concentrating fire from 3½ miles of batteries. After fighting gallantly for nearly an hour, and being knocked almost to pieces, Capt. Melancthon Smith gave orders to destroy her by fire. She floated down the stream until some miles above Baton Rouge, when her magazine exploded, blowing her to atoms and shaking the earth for miles around. Some sixty of her men are either killed or missing.

The Richmond had three killed and seven wounded—among the killed, Lieut.-Commander, A. B. Cummings.

The Monongahela had seven killed and twenty-one wounded—among the latter, Capt. McKinstry, and Acting Ensign Robert Barstow,

The Kineo was slightly disabled.

The Essex, Sachem, Genessee, and six mortar-boats, all escaped without injury, and are ready for immediate service.

Gen. Banks led the land forces in person, to cooperate with the fleet. In a skirmish, Col. Clark, his Chief of Staff, was fired upon from ambush, and received a wound in the leg, of which he has since died.

The army has returned to Baton Rouge, and the largest portion of the fleet remains up the river. Both the fleet and the army are in excellent health and spirits.

As the New-Brunswick left New-Orleans, the Bio Bio (just in from New-York) caught fire at the levee, and was totally consumed. Mails saved, but cargo lost. No lives lost.

From Our Special Correspondent.

New-Orleans, La., Sunday, March 15.

The long-expected demonstration against Port Hudson has commenced at last. I say commenced, because while many may be induced to think that the event I am about to record forms a complete drama, and are already recording their verdict of success or failure, just as their predilections may lead them, I feel persuaded that it is only the first scene of a great plot, the intended dénouement of which is known only to the author himself, Maj.-Gen. Banks.

Having been apprised that a large portion of our naval and land forces had already advanced up the river, I left New-Orleans on the evening of Wednesday, the 11th, and arrived at Baton Rouge on the afternoon of the 12th, and found Gen. Banks and his Staff established on the transport Empire Parish, as headquarters. There was so much order, quiet and calmness reigning on board, that nobody would have supposed that there was any event of consequence on the tapis. The flag-ship Hartford, the Mississippi, Monongahela, Essex, with the gunboat Keneo No. 3, and a number of mortar-boats, were all lying there "anchored in placid beauty," and looked as if they might remain there forever admiring their own shadows; such an entire absence was there of anything like bustle or excitement.

The next morning, however, was different. On looking out, these seabirds had all flown away, leaving an immense blank where, a few hours before, a whole fleet had been riding at anchor. On the land, indications of some important movement were no less observable. Wagons and ambulances were moving about in crowds—horsemen galloping to and fro in every direction,—groups of officers meeting and conversing together in mysterious whispers,—and everything assuming a decidedly martial aspect. Could we be possibly going to assault Port Hudson by land as well as by water? Some said "yes," others as emphatically said "no," and the bewildered civilian was left to draw the best conclusion he could between those two extremes.

Towards the afternoon of Friday it became pretty generally understood that an onward movement of some sort was to take place the next morning. Happening fortunately to fall in with Dr. Coggswell, of the Fiftieth Massachusetts, at the headquarters of acting Brig.-Gen. Dudley, the former gentleman politely offered me the use of a horse, which was no slight matter, as horse-flesh was not to be hired or bought in Baton Rouge, at its weight in gold.

THE LAND MOVEMENT.

I slept on board the Empire Parish that night, and at 2 o'clock the next morning all hands were aroused. It was a little after daybreak that, while tramping on foot to join Gen. Dudley's brigade, Gen. Banks and his whole Staff came gaily cantering by me. The morning was clear and beautiful, and everything promised a day of physical enjoyment, however mingled it might be with excitement and danger.

On overtaking Gen. Dudley's brigade, halted some distance on the Bayou Sara road, I there met the good doctor and my noble charger, Abe Lincoln, already caparisoned. It would be ungrateful to pass Abe without a word of thankful comment. A finer horse did not prance along that day in the army. Like his great namesake, he knew when to "put his foot down," and, to my certain knowledge, when to take it up also.

Accident had thrown me with Gen. Augur's division, which formed the reserve, and was composed of the First Brigade, under Col. Chapin, One Hundred and Sixteenth New-York, and the Third Brigade, under Acting Brig.-Gen. N. A. M. Dudley. Brig.-Gen. Grover's division, composed of the brigades of Gen. Dwight, Col. Van Zant, Ninety-first New-York, and Col. Payne, First Wisconsin, formed the advance, and left us as early as 3 P. M. on Friday. Gen. Emory's division followed at 7 P. M., composed of the brigades of Col. Ingraham, Thirty-eighth Massachusetts; Col. H. W. Birge, Thirteenth Connecticut, and Col. O. P. Gooding, Thirty-first Massachusetts. Gen. Augur's division left Baton Rouge about 4 A. M. on Saturday. Gen. Banks was in command of the forces. Col. Chickering, of the Forty-first Massachusetts, acting as Brigadier-General, was left in command of Baton Rouge, with an entire brigade, to hold the base at that town.

Gen. Banks advanced through the country without any molestation, until he got to Springfield road-crossing, where he made his headquarters; first in the field near the church, at the angle of the roads, and afterward in a house close by. The cavalry, in the meantime, were sent round the country to reconnoitre. On the first arrival of our advanced division in the woods, they met a force of about five hundred Confederate cavalry, but the latter retired before our advancing columns, (some of which reached within two miles of Port Hudson,) without even a skirmish.

During Saturday afternoon, however, there were two slight skirmishes between portions of Union and Confederate cavalry and infantry scattered through the woods, but nothing at all beyond a desultory firing. This was while reconnoissances were being made in the direction of Port Hudson, along the Bayou Sara road, and toward Ross and Springfield landings. It was in the latter direction that Col. Clark, Chief of Gen. Banks' Staff, was wounded. He was out reconnoitering with Capt. Sheppard, of the Second Rhode Island cavalry, and a small number of officers and orderlies about eight in number—when he was fired upon from ambush—a rifle ball killing his horse under him and wounding him severely in the leg. It is thought that amputation must take place, and the Colonel is in so low a state that serious fears are entertained of his recovery. A Confederate cavalryman was shortly afterward killed in the woods near that spot, and he is supposed to be the same who wounded Col. Clark.

Capt. Sheppard was also wounded and is missing.

These little skirmishes, going on a short distance ahead of where we were located, were, of course, distinctly heard, and not aware of their nature and importance, we knew not what value to attach to them at the time.

When the firing had entirely ceased, we were ordered to bivouac for the night in a magnificent wood, adjoining a large open plain, some eight miles from Port Hudson. The men of the Fiftieth Massachusetts and One Hundred and Sixty-first New-York, at once set to work to put up rude shelters for themselves, out of the zigzag fences, covered with leaves and branches. Dr. Coggswell, who, I may say, en passant, is an immense favorite with his regiment, the Fiftieth Massachusetts, constructed quite an ingenious impromptu palace, made of these rough fences and the broad green leaves of the magnificent magnolias 70 or 80 feet high, towering around us; trees that I had only formed a vague conception of through Chateaubriand's romantic descriptions, and any one of which should almost double the value of a country seat on the Hudson, if it could only be transplanted thither.

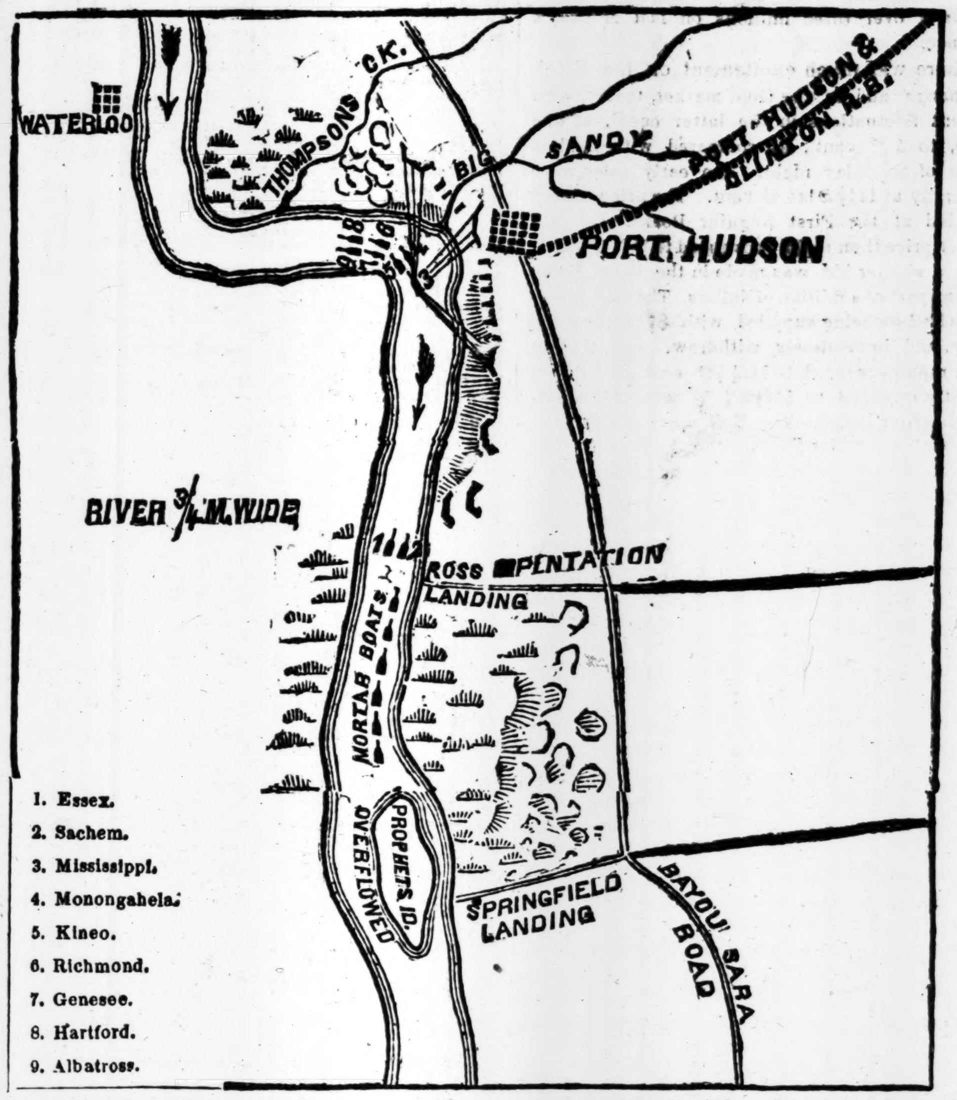
Here I snatched a few hours of delicious sleep, but very few, for, at about 10.45 P. M., I was aroused by the loud roaring of heavy canonading in the direction of Port Hudson, which continued, at intervals, with terrific energy—resembling more the continuous rumble of thunder than discharges from separate pieces of ordnance. This continued, almost without intermission, until 2 A. M., when the reveille was sounded, and almost quicker than it takes to write it, the men had sprung to arms and we were in the saddle.

To my astonishment—for there was no one capable of explaining what was going on ahead, or whether the firing we heard was on land or water—the booming of cannon, which had hitherto been confined to the immediate direction of Port Hudson, began by degrees to apparently descend the river, and at last fairly sounded in our rear. This phenomenon, (which was easily enough explained afterwards,) in our then state of ignorance and uncertainty, was by no means gratifying. "Had the rebels defeated our gunboats, and were they descending the Mississippi?" "Was the cannonading on land? and, if so, were not the enemy manifestly getting at us in flank and rear?" These were the questions freely whispered among the officers in my hearing, and there was certainly nothing to advance against these apprehensions but faith in our gallant soldiers and sailors, in Banks and Farragut.

What made matters worse was that, at the very time we were puzzled by hearing firing in such strange and contradictory directions, we saw the trains and ambulances moving through the darkness toward the rear, and every now and then squads of cavalry would pass, or an Aid-de-Camp gallop past; and by and by a company of the Sixteenth New-Hampshire came tramping along, in slow and solemn step—all in the same direction, to the rear.

THE NAVAL BATTLE AT PORT HUDSON.

Plan of Admiral Farragut's Gallant Attack on the Rebel Batteries.



There are few things more disheartening and demoralizing to a soldier, in the full flush of eager and proud excitement, than to see the first symptoms of what he thinks a retreat, without having any idea of the cause. I really believe that many a victory has been lost by some strange and unwarranted apprehension of disaster being allowed to seize upon and hold possession of the minds of an army. Cannot the Generals, in such cases as these, without informing the soldiers of their intentions, at least issue some order that shall soothe unnecessary apprehension?

It was useless to ask any questions of those who were passing, for they either knew nothing, or, with very proper and sphynx-like gravity, refused to answer any of the many eager questions that were stealthily flung at them from the ranks. There the men stood like statues, ready for anything that might come, from any quarter, but silently and gravely cogitating with themselves as to what it could all mean.

Thus matters stood until about 5 o'clock in the morning, (Sunday,) when we saw a sudden and most extraordinary light shoot up and illumine the whole heavens in the direction of Baton Rouge. The effect through those lofty, solemn woods was grand beyond description. "There's the signal!" came spontaneously from every lip. Could it be ours, or from the enemy? Was it at Baton Rouge, or nearer to us? One thing certain is, that it was completely in our rear. I had had sufficient time to converse with the group of officers around me, and to compare opinions with them upon the subject, when a tremendous crash came, quite as loud as the report of a 20-pounder, within a few rods of us.

"We are in for it now," said or thought every one, and it was curious to see how every man instantaneously clutched his weapon and braced himself up. The game had begun, and we waited for the next report, but nothing followed. We were more puzzled than ever. By-and-by, an Aid of Gen. Banks' came flying to Gen. Augur, and we heard of the sad fate of the gallant Mississippi. It was her dying salute which had so startled us. Some idea of the terrific nature of her explosion can be gained from the fact, that so long a time had passed between the light we saw and the report, which we mistook for a cannon quite near us, that no one among us had ever thought of connecting the two. The distance must have been at least 7 or 8 miles.

At 9 A. M., news having reached us of the Hartford and Albatross having passed Port Hudson, and that Gen. Banks had telegraphed Gen. Augur that the object of the expedition was accomplished,—the order was given to return, which we did leisurely, as the sun was growing hot, and arrived at a place called Bayou Montecino—about 4 miles from Baton Rouge—where Gen. Dudley's brigade bivouacked for the night.

Shortly after our arrival at this spot, Gen. Banks came riding by, and Gen. Dudley having drawn up his men in line, with all their officers, they gave Gen. Banks three rounds of cheers that made the woods ring.

Having seen the "elephant," and the game being over, for the present, at any rate, there was nothing for me to do but to hurry on to Baton Rouge and secure the first conveyance for my letter to New-Orleans.

THE ACTION OF THE FLEET.

If there was little action to record on the part of our army—which it now appears was never intended to assault the forts, but merely to make a diversion in favor of the fleet—it is far different with the latter, which, in spite of our losses, has added another bright page to the already brilliant records of our navy.

On arriving at Baton Rouge on Sunday evening, having heard that some 25 of the crew of the Mississippi had landed there, and were at the Court-house, I at once went to see the gallant fellows, and spent a couple of hours in listening to and taking notes of their exciting narrative. Having the next day had the pleasure of accompanying them and their officers from Baton Rouge to New-Orleans, on board the Iberville, and had abundant opportunity for sifting and comparing all the various information I have received, you may rely upon this statement as about as near the truth as any one can arrive at.

At about 4 P. M. on Friday, the 13th inst., the following vessels of the fleet of Admiral Farragut left Baton Rouge and proceeded up the river in the order in which they are given: The Hartford, (flagship,) Capt. Palmer; Richmond, Commander Alden; Monongahela, Capt. McKinstry; Keneo, Lieut.-Commander Waters, and the Mississippi, Commander Melancthon Smith. They anchored at dark that evening, about eight miles from Baton Rouge.

At daylight on Saturday they all got under weigh, and proceeded up the river, arriving within sight of Port Hudson at 9 A. M., when they anchored just out of range of the batteries. Found the iron-clad Essex, Commander Caldwell; the Genesee, Capt. Macomb; the Albatross, Lieut.-Commander Hart, and the Sachem, Commander Johnson, at that place, with six mortar vessels, all under command of Commander Caldwell, of the Essex.

The Essex and mortar vessels had taken a point close in shore, screened by the trees, from which position they were to operate; the remaining vessels being anchored in the rear of them and in the stream, in the order above-mentioned. About 2 P. M. the mortar vessels opened on the batteries for the purpose of establishing their range, and the Sachem Capt. Johnson, stood out in the stream above the others, to draw the enemy's fire and ascertain his range, &c. The enemy not choosing to reply, she returned to her former position, and the mortar boats ceased firing.

This was a gallant act on the part of the Sachem, and worthy of the little craft that so distinguished herself at Galveston as to form one of the few bright spots in that otherwise disgraceful affair.

Just before dark the gunboats went alongside the larger vessels, on the port side. The Albatross went up to the Hatford, which led the van: the Genesee to the Richmond, which came next; and the Keneo to the Monongahela, which was third. The Mississippi brought up the rear, and being a sidewheel, could not take a gunboat alongside under her protection.

About 10 P. M. the signal was given to get under weigh, which was two red lights under the stern of the flagship Hartford, to be repeated at the stern of all the vessels following. This was immediately done, and they all steamed up toward the batteries.

As soon as the flagship came within range of the batteries, (about 10.45 P. M.,) a rocket was sent up from the shore opposite Port Hudson, which was immediately answered by another from the batteries, and they commenced firing upon the flagship—she returning their fire admirably. The other vessels following close upon her, the action became general.

The moment the enemy commenced firing upon our fleet, the mortar-boats opened upon their batteries, and continued an incessant and terrific bombardment, the Essex also doing good execution with her three bow guns. Deserters who have since come into our lines say that the effect on the batteries was terrible. For one hour and a quarter the fight continued in fearful earnest, the fleet and batteries keeping up one incessant roar; the darkness of the night, and the thick smoke-clouds hanging to the river's surface, being lit up by the red glare of artillery.

The flagship Hartford, and her little protégé, the Albatross, passed safely by the forts. The Richmond had got up as far as the upper battery, when she received a shot which carried away her safety valve, compelling her to blow off steam, and thus completely disabling her. The Genesee then towed her down again past the batteries, when she had to run a second time the gauntlet. The Monongahela had also got very near the upper battery, and had every chance of passing, when her crank-pin became heated, compelling her to slow her engine, and not having power to stem the current, she also was compelled to repass the forts a second time, with her companion, the Keneo,

THE MISSISSIPPI.

While this was going on, the Mississippi had reached the sharp point or bend immediately opposite the heaviest battery in front of Port Hudson, and about five hundred yards from the opposite shore, where she grounded. The enemy having lit up a fire behind her, on the opposite shore, she at once became a target for them, and having once obtained her exact range, the firing upon her became murderous. Imagine this devoted vessel the centre of the third of a circle of only five hundred yards radius—this arc, comprising a length of some three and a half miles, bristling with batteries and cannon, and all converging their fire upon one vessel from her starboard bow to her starboard quarter. Think of this noble craft staying in that position for nearly an hour, firing off her 286 guns—her portholes knocked two into one—her foretop blown away, rudder disabled, rigging and bulwarks completely gone, and her starboard so careened over as to present a full broadside to the enemy, while it prevented her from using her guns up the sloping deck. Except in the case of the Cumberland and Congress, the annals of naval warfare present no such instance of human bravery and endurance.

Capt. Smith, who had said beforehand that he would never surrender his ship, was true to his word. He never lowered his flag, but when he found that his vessel could not possibly be saved, gave orders for his men to leave. The order had to be repeated three times by the officers of divisions before they would comply, or leave their guns.

The sick and wounded were then taken to the surrounding vessels, and after making preparation for firing the Mississippi, the men saved themselves—some in boats, some by jumping overboard, &c. Capt. Smith, Lieut. Dewey, Ensign O. A. Batcheller and Second Assistant Engineer Hull, are said to have been among the last on board.

The ship burnt until she became sufficiently lightened to float herself off, and then she went down the stream by herself. Those who watched her from the other side, going on this strange voyage, one mass of fire, say that she moved as prettily as if she were being steered. As she proceeded down the stream she kept firing off her cannons and other arms, all in the direction of the forts, and as this lasted for a long distance down, it will account for the strange manner in which we in the woods found ourselves being gradually surrounded (as we thought) by the enemy's fire. She floated onward until she reached a point about five miles above Baton Rouge, near where the Arkansas was blown up, and there, at 5 o'clock A. M., on Sunday, (precisely the hour at which we saw the light and heard the report,) her after magazine, containing twenty tons of powder, ignited, blew her to atoms, and shook the earth for miles around.

CASUALTIES.

The Richmond received seventeen shots in her hull, but was not seriously injured, except in her machinery, and that, it is thought, she can easily repair. She had three killed and seven wounded. Among the latter was Lieut.-Commander A. B. Cummings, who had his left leg struck off by a cannon ball, below the knee, while standing on the bridge. He was very low during our trip here on the Iberville from Baton Rouge, and died shortly after his arrival. Funeral service was performed over him this morning at Christ Church with full honors, attended by a large concourse of the navy, military, and civilians, and his remains will proceed to New-York. He was a gallant and much beloved officer.

The Monongahela had several shots in her hull. One shell exploded in her ward room; another in her engine room. She is also ready for service. She had seven killed and twenty-one wounded. Among her wounded are Capt. McKinstry, and Acting Ensign Robert Barstow. Capt. Smith, of the Mississippi, takes temporary command of the Monongahela.

The Genesee escaped without any injury at all.

The Keneo had a solid shot between her rudder and stern post, disabling her steering apparatus.

The Essex and the mortar fleet escaped without any injury whatever. So did the Sachem.

Knowing the intense anxiety that will be felt at the North among the friends and relatives of these heroic men, I have been very careful in preparing for you a full and correct list of those on board the Mississippi. Those of the other vessels I have not yet been able to obtain, but will try to do so.

Among the losses on board the Mississippi there is none more deplored than Acting-Master Robert L. Kelly. All his brother officers speak of him as a kind, genial and brave man, beloved by every one in the ship. When he was killed his men all left their guns to bear him away.

The little powder-boy, Jno. Keating, (or Caton, as his companions call him,) seems to have been also a special favorite. This poor little fellow, only 14 years old, had the whole of his thigh near the groin torn away by a shell. He was a young Union refugee from the rebel gunboat Florida in Mobile bay.

INCIDENTS.

The first shot against the Mississippi struck her foretopmast, and brought down a heavy 12-pound howitzer with a man. Officers who were at Forts Jackson and St. Philip say that the firing of this engagement was much more accurate.

The Richmond exploded a torpedo under her, and the Mississippi also, but without any damage to either.

During the engagement a very awkward and painful accident is said to have occurred, which some few deny, but the majority of officers and men insist upon as correct. It appears that while the Richmond was passing the Mississippi, on the return of the former down the river, she mistook the Mississippi for a shore battery, and the Mississippi, mistaking her for some rebel craft, both fired into each other. It was one of those painful mishaps which all the officers declare there was no possibility of avoiding at such a moment. The night was dark, the Mississippi had extinguished all her lights to baffle the fire of the enemy, and in the confusion, the mistake, however lamentable, appears to have been quite natural. I would not have alluded to the subject, if I were not apprehensive that it might be mentioned elsewhere, without any mitigating explanation.

Among the incidents related to me by the officers of the Mississippi, is one which should be mentioned, and that is the bravery exhibited by Rev. Thomas S. Bacon, Episcopal clergyman of Christ Church, in this city, who was on board the Richmond. An officer assured me that during the heat of the engagement, Mr. Bacon was standing on the bridge, along with Commander Alden and the pilot, and when invited by Dr. Henderson to go down into the cockpit, he preferred remaining where he was. When he did change his position, it was to go and assist in kindly offices to the wounded, with all the coolness and composure of a war veteran.

Mr. Bacon is one of those staunch loyalists of the South whose example is indeed worthy of honor and imitation. Born and bred in the South, with all the influences of habit and education to overcome, the love of country is a principle so deeply rooted in his heart, that, although long separated from his family and kindred, his property almost ruined, he is still ready to sacrifice everything—life itself if necessary—in defence of our just and holy cause. I have been permitted to make a copy af a letter just received by his friend, Lieut. Milner Brown, of Gen. Bowen's staff, which is of public interest, as it proves the substantial value of what we have just achieved at Port Hudson.

On Board U. S. Sloop-of-War Richmond,
Below Port Hudson.

My Dear Brown: I have missed your frank and cordial laugh so much for the last week, that I am going to make you the particular person to whom I shall say that I am alive and unhurt, after the terrific naval combat of last night. Well, I have been through it. I have stood in the midst of that magnificent and awful thundering and lightning and quakings, with deadly missiles flying through us; this at night, and wrapped in the blinding smoke-clouds of our own great guns. It was the most severe and deadly action (by wooden ships against earthworks) of this war; and I humbly thank God that I am safe; that the Richmond, with her very noble and gallant captain and crew, is safe, and comparatively unhurt.

I should not wonder if some of our croakers talk of this as a great calamity and disgrace, and inquire what our navy is doing. Tell any such for me, as an eye-witness, that the main object of the movement—viz., securing the cutting off of the enemy at Port Hudson from Red River—is accomplished, since the Admiral, with the Hartford and Albatross, passed above. The old Mississippi, indeed, was burned by her Captain, to prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy, as she had missed her way and got fast aground. And the Richmond, Genesee, Monongahela and Keneo, after getting nearly past, had to return—from injuries which made it more or less difficult to stem the current above. Ours, which were the most serious, are already nearly repaired. * *

I wish also to add, in regard to the navy, that so far from losing my admiration and confidence, by the events of which I have just been an eye-witness, I love it and trust in it more than ever. Never were greater coolness, judgment and valor seen than I saw on the part of all—Captain, Lieutenants and other officers and sailors, on the bloody decks of the Richmond.

Hoping to see you soon, and have some of our old friendly gaiety, your friend and servant,

THOMAS S. BACON.

THE OFFICERS AND CREW OF THE MISSISSIPPI.

I should do violence to my own feelings if I neglected to tell you how deeply I have been impressed with the bravery of the gallant men who have just made themselves so conspicuous on board the Mississippi—from the Captain down to the roughest seaman or youngest powder boy. Their bravery needs no comment,—that has already become a matter of history; but, in social intercourse, I never met a more modest, unassuming and genial set of men than I found among her officers,—a more orderly, quiet and warm-hearted set of fellows than the jolly tars who had just passed through such scenes.

One thing was most charming to an outsider, and that was to hear how the sailors spoke of their officers. It would be invidious to mention names; but I could easily tell you, if I would, of officers there who were literally adored by their men. Of one man there is no harm in being outspoken, and that is the gallant Capt. Melancthon Smith. Officers and men all agree in saying that sublimer courage was never exhibited than he showed. "He has never been known to speak an angry word to any body," said one of his officers to me, "and yet no one is so readily and so cheerfully obeyed." In the heat of the engagement, with death and destruction hailing around him, there he stood coolly lighting his cigar with flint and steel, and calmly arranging with Lieut. Dewey how to destroy the ship that he found he could no longer save. Capt. Smith, without making any outward parade of religion, is a truly devout man. When the bloody engagement was over, and his officers had collected around him, taking a retrospect of their losses, and commenting upon the almost miraculous nature of their escape, he turned round and said in the hearing of the officer from whom I received the anecdote: "Gentlemen, is not this enough to make any one a Christian?"

I could fill a column with the sufferings of the sailors after they were compelled to leave the vessel. Those of them who escaped alive to shore, by swimming, walked along the river side, watching the progress of their beloved and ill-fated vessel, on fire, until they got to our pickets, nearly opposite which she blew up. This was 5 o'clock A. M., and they had been ever since 2 o'clock wading through unknown swamps, shoeless and many almost naked. Several lost their lives in the attempt. Officers and men all came away with nothing whatever but what they had on their bodies. Some of the poor fellows lost their way through these desolate swamps, and did not find their way to the river side until 12 o'clock next day, when the St. Maurice brought them to Baton Rouge.

They all speak in the highest terms of the kind treatment they met from our pickets, under Capt. Rodgers, Company A, One Hundred and Seventy-third New-York, also of the speed with which Col. Chickering, Forty-first Massachusetts, sent the Iberville to their assistance.

If our authorities want fit subjects for promotion, let them take the whole list of the Mississippi's officers and crew at random. Every little powder-boy among them should become a midshipman. When we discard the "I'm-the-son-of-my-father" principle, and select our naval officers from such decks as those of the Mississippi, our military officers from such fields as Murfreesboro, instead of from the ranks of mouthing politicians, we may expect to have an army and navy—until then, never.

EFFECT OF THE NEWS IN NEW-ORLEANS.

The effect of the news from Port Hudson is precisely here what might have been expected. The rebel sympathizers are already claiming it as a victory. The newsboys go screaming through the streets, "Retreat of Gen. Banks." As one young rascal impudently flaunted his piece of brown paper in my face on the steps of the St. Charles, with, "Retreat of Gen. Banks," I asked him how he dared to cry that in the streets, and who told him to do it. "They told me at the office, Sir," was the ready reply.

WOOD VERSUS IRON.

I cannot help thinking—and there are plenty of naval men to say so, too—that instead of a partial, we should have had a complete success at Port Hudson had we been less wedded to our old notions of wooden vessels, and more prone to avail ourselves of the resources of modern science in the use of iron clads. It may be a very noble performance, a very sublime exhibition of human daring and courage, to send a huge wooden vessel, drawing 22 feet of water, to run a gauntlet of 3½ miles of terrible earthwork batteries, but, for the life of me, I cannot see the use of it, when we have invulnerable iron-clads.

Three Monitors, of speed enough to overcome the four-mile current of the Mississippi—that is if we have such things—could have glided by those forts without the necessity of wasting one ounce of powder, and defied the rebels, in broad daylight, to prevent their doing so. Many believe it could have been done too, and can yet be done, without the loss of a man. That bloodless victory once effected, the Mississippi between Vicksburgh and Port Hudson is ours, the grand source of rebel supplies is cut off, and they must look entirely to their already half-famished interior for nourishment.

Why have we not used iron vessels? Simply because, I am told, there is a prejudice in the navy against them. One brave officer of the Mississippi, in conversation with me, actually laughed at the idea of causing Port Hudson to be evacuated by starving them out. Not that he doubted it could be done, and by iron-clads safely passing the forts, but he said that was "no way of making war."

If we are engaged in this war simply to give our gallant tars an opportunity of proving how long they can stand on a wooden vessel and let three and a half miles of earthworks blaze away at them, I can see the argument. But if our object is to cripple and overcome the enemy as speedily as possible, let us have two or three Monitors, not only to give us immediate possession of the Mississippi River, but to insure us—in the event of any mishap to our fleet—the safety of New-Orleans itself!

This is no time, in the country's crisis, to be adhering to old-fashioned notions, merely for the sake of it, and when we know we have more effective means. We want, and must have, the river between Vicksburgh and Port Hudson, so as to compel the rebels, by sheer necessity, to evacuate both those strongholds. How this is to be accomplished—whether in the regular "way of making war" or not—the country does not care one fig.

If Admiral Farragut had, under cover of night, managed to rush his fleet past Port Hudson, having for his object not to fight the batteries, but to get by them, I believe he would have achieved the most glorious—because the most important and bloodless—victory of this war. With Monitors it could have been and can yet be done—so many naval officers believe—without wasting a shot or losing a man. With wooden vessels, especially large men-of-war, drawing so much water as the Mississippi, the result is very problematical. We care not for all the poetry we hear about "wooden ships and iron hearts behind them." The world knows enough of the dashing bravery of our Admiral and his heroic band, but all their valor cannot alter the laws of nature, and make wooden vessels glance off cannon balls with the same impunity as iron-calds. Why was the iron-clad Essex—the vessel that, of all others, stood the best chance of getting past—allowed to remain in the rear, while her gallant companions were subjected to this murderous and unnatural duel between wood and earthworks?

PRESENT POSITION OF MATTERS.

Whether or not any other movement is immediately contemplated is not known, and could not be revealed if it were. The bulk of our army has for the present returned to Baton Rouge and immediate neighborhood, as well as the fleet, and both army and navy are in good spirits, and ready for another movement whenever it may come. The Hartford and Albatross are known to be safe.

The last news from the North has had an electric effect upon the army and navy and all loyalists here. The unmistakable Union demonstrations in New-York and elsewhere; the extraordinary powers vested in the President; the Conscription act; the wonderful change of opinion in Europe toward us; the sudden fall in gold; the outspoken language of the army (which will soon hear an echo from the Army of the Gulf) against the Copperheads; the painful straits to which the rebels are known to be re

THE MEDIATION QUESTION.

Lord Lyons' Report of the Democratic Victories—His Interviews with the Democratic Leaders.

We received by the last steamer a copy of the Blue Books, recently laid on the table in the British Parliament, containing the correspondence between the British Government and our own on American affairs. From one of these volumes we copy the following dispatch:

LORD LYONS TO EARL RUSSELL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17, 1862.

MY LORD: In his dispatches of the 17th and 24th ult. and of the 17th inst., Mr. STUART reported to your lordship the results of the elections for members of Congress and State officers, which have recently taken place in several of the most important States of the Union. Without repeating the details, it will be sufficient for me to observe that the success of the Democrats, or (as it now styles itself) the Conservative party, has been so great as to manifest a change in public feeling, among the most rapid and complete that has ever been witnessed, even in this country.

On my arrival at New-York on the 8th inst., I found he conservative leaders exulting in the crowning uccess achieved by the party in that State. They ppeared to rejoice, above all, in the conviction that ersonal liberty and freedom of speech had been ecured for the principal State of the Union. They elieved that the Government must at once desist om exercising in the state of the New-York the xtraordinary, (and as they regarded them,) illegal nd unconstitutional powers which it had assumed. hey were confident that, at all events, after the 1st of January next, on which day the newly-elected overnor would come into office, the suspension of e writ of habeas corpus could not be practically maintained. They seemed to be persuaded that the reult of the election would be accepted by the President as a declaration of the will of the people; that e would increase the moderate and conservative ement in the Cabinet; that he would seek to termiate the war, not to push it to extremity; that he ould endeavor to effect a reconciliation with the eople of the South, and renounce the idea of subjuating or exterminating them.

On the following morning, however, intelligence rived from Washington which dashed the rising opes of the conservatives. It was announced that en. MCCLELLAN had been dismissed from the command of the Army of the Potomac, and ordered to reir to his home—that he had, in fact, been removed together from active service. The General had en regarded as the representative of conservative inciples in the army. Support of him had been ade one of the articles of the conservative electoral ogramme. His dismissal was taken as a sign that e President had thrown himself entirely into the ms of the extreme radical party, and that the atmpt to carry out the policy of that party would be rsisted in. The irritation of the conservatives at ew-York was certainly very great; it seemed, hower, to be not unmixed with consternation and spondency.

Several of the leaders of the Democratic party ught interviews with me, both before and after the rival of the intelligence of Gen. MCCLELLAN'S dissal. The subject uppermost in their minds while ey were speaking to me was naturally that of forgn mediation between the North and South. Many them seemed to think that this mediation must me at last; but they appeared to be very much aid of its coming too soon. It was evident that ey apprehended that a premature proposal of forn intervention would afford the radical party a eans of reviving the violent war spirit, and of thus feating the peaceful plans of the conservatives. ey appeared to regard the present moment as peiarly unfavorable for such an offer, and, indeed, hold that it would be essential to the success of any oposal from abroad that it should be deferred until control of the Executive Government should be the hands of the conservative party.

gave no opinion on the subject. I did not say ether or no I myself thought foreign intervention obable or advisable; but I listened with attention the accounts given me of the plans and hopes of conservative party. At the bottom I thought I ceived a desire to put an end to the war, even at risk of losing the Southern States altogether; but as plain that it was not thought prudent to avow desire. Indeed, some hints of it, dropped before elections, were so ill-received that a strong deration in the contrary sense was deemed necessary he Democratic leaders.

t the present moment, therefore, the chiefs of the servative party call loudly for a more vigorous secution of the war, and reproach the Governt with slackness, as well as with want of success, ts military measures. But they repudiate all idea interfering with the institutions of the Southern ple, or of waging a war of subjugation or extermation. They maintain that the object of the mili- operations should be to place the North in a poon to demand an armistice with honor and with ct. The armistice should, they hold, be followed Convention, in which such changes in the Contion should be proposed as would give the th ample security on the subject of its slave perty, and would enable the North and South to reunite, and to live together peace and harmony. The conservatives proto think that the South might be induced to e part in such a Convention, and that a restoraof the Union would be the result. The more acious members of the party must, however, look n the proposal of a Convention merely as a last eriment to test the possibility of reunion. They , no doubt, well aware that the more probable sequence of an armistice would be the establishnt of Southern independence; but they perceive if the South is so utterly alienated that no possiconcessions will induce it to return voluntarily to Union, it is wiser to agree to separation than to secute a cruel and hopeless war.

is with reference to such an armistice as they ire to attain that the leaders of the conservative ly regard the question of foreign mediation. They k that the offer of mediation, if made to a radical ninistration, would be rejected; that, if made at nnpropitious moment, it might increase the viruce with which the war is prosecuted. If their n party were in power, or virtually controlled the ninistration, they would rather, if possible, obtain armistice without the aid of foreign Governments; they would be disposed to accept an offer of liation if it appeared to be the only means of ting a stop to hostilities. They would desire that offer should come from the great Powers of Eue conjointly, and in particular that as little promce as possible should be given to Great Britain.

t Washington I have had fewer opportunities n I had at New-York of ascertaining the present ws of the chiefs of the political parties. At the inview which I had with Mr. SEWARD the day after arrival, he showed no disposition to enter upon poal matters. He did not appear to expect or desire eceive from me any special communication from Majesty's Government. The President, when I ted upon him, talked to me only on ordinary cs. I, for my part, gladly shunned all allusion to ign intervention, my principal object being to d saying anything which might embarrass me in ying out any instructions on the subject which I receive from your Lordship.

ll things considered, my own opinion certainly is the present moment is not a favorable one for ing an offer of mediation. It might embarrass the ce party, and even oblige them, in order to maintheir popularity, to make some public declara- against it, and this might make it difficult for n to accept a similar offer at a more propitious . It would in all probability be rejected by the sident, who appears to have thrown himself into arms of the extreme radical party. The views of party are clear and definite. They declare that is no hope of reconciliation with the Southern le; that the war must be pursued, per fas aut s, until the disloyal men of the South are ruined subjugated, if not exterminated; that not an inch e old territory of the Republic must be given up; foreign intervention, in any shape, must be red and resented. This party would desire to turn ffer of mediation to account, for the purpose of ming the war spirit and producing a reaction nst the conservatives.

is probable, too, that the Government would , in answer to an offer of mediation, that it has o means abandoned the hope of putting down the llion within a reasonable time; that, at all ts, this is not a moment at which it can reasonbe called upon to put a stop to hostilities. It ld observe that the armies of the United States everywhere advancing, and that expeditions are ared against Texas, as well as against Charles- Mobile, and other points on the coast. It d point out that it had equipped a conable number of war vessels—iron-clad as as others—at a vast expense; that the on had just arrived when the Autumn would render the rivers navigable by armed ls, and when the Southern coast would be free epidemic disease. It might even represent an nce of the Army of the Potomac to Richmond as bable event. The experience of the past is cer- not calculated to inspire any great confidence results of these warlike preparations; but the cal interests of the party now in power render tinuance of the war a necessity to it. Its only ce of regaining its lost popularity lies in successilitary operations. Unless it can obtain a much r place in public estimation than it now occunot only will its tenure of power become exely precarious, but some of its leading members be called to a severe account for their extra legal eedings. During the session of Congress which s next month the present Administration indeed reason to expect an uncomprog support from a majority of both Houses ongress. But on the 4th of March next the ex- House of Representatives is dissolved by the s of the Constitution, and at the same time seve- the present Senators go out of office. The ma- of the members chosen at the recent elections e new House of Representatives are of the ocratic or Conservative party, and in some s Senators of that party will be returned in the of those whose term of office expires next h. The new Congress is in fact likely to be hos- to the Administration and to the radical party; though it will not, in the ordinary course of , assemble until the last month of next year, resident will hardly be able to persist in his prespolicy and in his assumption of extraordinary powers, unless he can, in virtue of military successes, obtain a reputation with the people which will sustain him in a contest with the Legislature.

It would seem, then, to be vain to make an offer of mediation to the present Government, in the present mood, with any notion that it would be accepted. A change of mood may, however, take place after the 4th of March, if no great military successes occur in the interval. Such a change may possibly be produced sooner by military reverses. A proposal, however, to mediate, made even under present circumstances, by three or more of the great Powers of Europe conjointly, might not produce any great inconvenience.

It is indeed urged by some people that mediation should be offered, not so much with a view to its being accepted, as to clearing the way for a recognition of the Southern Confederacy. And, indeed, if it were determined that the time had come for recognizing that Confederacy, no doubt an offer of mediation would be a suitable preliminary. But I do not clearly understand what advantage is expected to result from a simple recognition of the Southern Government; and I presume that the European Powers do not contemplate breaking up the blockade by force of arms, or engaging in hostilities with the United States in support of the independence of the South.

I have, indeed, heard it maintained that Great Britain would recognize the independence of the South as soon as possible, with a view to impede the success of the efforts of the conservative party to reconstruct the Union. The advocates of this opinion consider a reunion as a probable event, and apprehend that the first result of it would be that the combined forces of the North and the South would be let loose upon Canada. I certainly do not at present share these apprehensions. All hope of the reconstruction of the Union appears to be fading away, even from the minds of those who most ardently desire it. But if the reconstruction be still possible, I do not think that we need conclude that it would lead to an invasion of Canada, or to any consequences injurious to Great Britain. At any rate, dangers of this kind are remote. The immediate and obvious interest of Great Britain, as well as the rest of Europe, is that peace and prosperity should be restored to this country as soon as possible. The point chiefly worthy of consideration appears to be whether separation or reunion be the more likely to effect this object.

I have, &c., LYONS.

The Weekly Averages of the Banks of the City of New-York, on Saturday, March 28, 1863, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous exhibit of March 21:

Decrease in Loans	$1,380,953
Increase in Specie	362,596

Including the Clearing-house operations of the week, which show the Inter-exchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury balance at the close of the week, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

	March 29, 1862.	March 28, 1863.	March 21, 1863.
Capital	$69,051,000	$69,128,000	$69,128,000

The Stock of Gold in Bank makes a gain of nearly half a million on the resent statement, after the transfer of about a million to the Treasury for Customs, and the export of another million to Europe since the previous return. The Deposit line shows the effect of the heavy conversions of United States Currency last week into the new Loan of 1882. The Sub-Treasury makes a gain of over three millions on last Monday's balance.

There was much excitement on the Stock Exchange and in the Gold market, to-day, with violent fluctuations in the latter equal, at one time, to 5 ₩ cent., as compared with the last price of Saturday night. The early sales were generally at 144½@145 ₩ cent. The price closed 145 bid at the First Regular Board. But the Street price then rapidly advanced to 148½ ₩ cent., and a similar bid was made in the Board Room for any part of a million of dollars. The bidder was surprised on being supplied with $300,000 at the price, and immediately withdrew. The market then rapidly receded to 145½ ₩ cent., but subsequently returned to 146½@¾ ₩ cent. at the Second Regular Board. The Bull speculars in the Railway and other Shares, the holders of Exchange, the dealers in Produce and General Merchandise, and the speculators in Cotton, are all disposed to help the recovery in Gold from the recent heavy and sudden decline, at least to the extent of 5@10 ₩ cent.; while, on the other hand, they are met by a good many short sellers on three-day contracts, and by an actual supply of Gold, seeking a market at the going rates, more than equal to the legitimate or regular Export and Custom-house demand.

The Stock Market was stronger by 1@2 ₩ cent. (and on Harlem 3 ₩ cent.) on nearly the entire Share list than on Saturday night. The business in Harlem was enormous, and the rapid advance in price creates much astonishment on the Street. The other New-York Roads were also firm—Central, at an advance of 2 ₩ cent.; Erie 1½ and Hudson 2½ ₩ cent. on Saturday's sales. The Westerns advanced less decidedly, though generally firm through both the Regular Boards, and sustained at the late Public Board. The Railway Bonds and City Bank Shares were also better, and the Government Stocks and Treasury paper steady.

At 4 o'clock the general market, without so much excitement as in the forenoon, left off steady, the following being about the prices, as compared with Saturday night:

We have several inquiries from the country in reference to the Taxation upon Bank Currency and Deposits, and Bank Capital, under the recent law of Congress and decision of the Supreme Court.

The National tax upon Bank Circulation is payable half-yearly, and reckoned from 1st April, 1863. It is one-half of one per cent. every half year on the average Circulation up to the following scale of Capital:

"That is to say, banks, associations, corporations, or individuals, having a capital of not over one hundred thousand dollars, ninety per centum thereof; over one hundred thousand and not over two hundred thousand dollars, eighty per centum thereof; over two hundred thousand and not over three hundred thousand dollars, seventy per centum thereof; over three hundred thousand and not over five hundred thousand dollars, sixty per centum thereof; over five hundred thousand and not over one million of dollars, fifty per centum thereof; over one million and not over one million and a half of dollars, forty per centum thereof; over one million and a half and not over two millions of dollars, thirty per centum thereof; over two millions of dollars, twenty-five per centum thereof."

When the circulation exceeds the above proportions, the half yearly tax is one ₩ cent. on the excess. The same rule applies to Circulation under the National Law, and where a preëxisting Bank shall use a mixed Currency, local and National, the tax will be levied as though the Circulation was made uniform. The tax upon Deposits is uniform throughout, and makes no reference to Capital; it is one-eighth of one ₩ cent. on the average Deposits of every six months.

There is no State, County or Municipal power to tax Bank Capital, local or National, where the same is invested in United States Stocks. If the whole capital be not so invested, the proportion in United States Stocks can be claimed as exempt.

The Sixty-second Section of the National Banking Act gives to every local Bank duly organized under State law at the time of its passage, February 25, 1862, the right of a National Circulation, to one half the amount of its Capital, on the pledge of United States Stocks at the rate of 80 ₩ cent. of their par value. Such Stocks may have been owned at the time the Act passed, or they may be subsequently acquired.

The 1st April interest on the Income Bonds of the Chicago, Alton and St. Louis Railroad will be paid on Wednesday, at the office of the Company, No. 25 William-street.

The day's business at the office of the Assistant Treasurer, United States, was as follows: Receipts, $5,557,845 30, including for Customs, $137,000; payments, $5,735,664 05; balance, $18,214,129 51.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

The steamship New-Brunswick, from New-Orleans on the 22d inst., arrived at this port yesterday morning, and was followed last evening by the McClellan, which left New-Orleans on the same day. By these arrivals we have full details, from our Special Correspondent, of the movement against Port Hudson by the land and naval forces, and the passage of the rebel batteries by two of Admiral FARRAGUT'S vessels—the Hartford and the Albatross—not the Monongahela, as before reported. The passage of the batteries, as already stated, took place on the night of Saturday, the 14th inst. Taking the lead with the Hartford and Alabatross, followed by the Richmond and Kineo, the Monongahela and Genesee, and lastly the Mississippi. Admiral FARRAGUT essayed the passage, while the Essex and Sachem in the rear, with six mortar-boats, kept up a constant fire. The Hartford and Albatross passed the upper batteries in safety. The Richmond, after reaching the upper battery, was temporarily disabled and had to fall back. So was the Monongahela. The Mississippi ran aground at the bend opposite the central battery, receiving the concentrated fire of the entire fort for an hour, and fighting most desperately. Finding it impossible to save her, Capt. SMITH gave orders to fire her. She afterward floated down the river till she reached a point a few miles above Baton Rouge, where her magazine exploded. Some sixty of the crew are either killed or missing. The remainder of the fleet are safe and ready for action. The army, under Major-Gen. BANKS, proceeded by land, simply to make a diversion; but after the Hartford had passed, and the experiment of passing the forts was ended, returned to Baton Rouge. They approached to within five or six miles of Port Hudson, and met portions of the enemy, who retreated to the forts. There had been no other military or naval movements. The steamship Bio Bio, which arrived at New-Orleans on the morning of the 22d, was burnt at her wharf immediately after her arrival.

Advices received in Washington from Fortress Monroe confirm the statement made in our Washington correspondence, that the rebel Government is removing from Richmond all its military supplies. Gen. DIX, it is said, is of the opinion that the rebels are preparing to leave Richmond, and has so informed the Washington authorities.

We have sufficient proof that we may expect soon to have important news from the Southern Coast, in the nature of the latest advices from Port Royal, which are to the 25th inst. On the morning of that day six Monitors left Hilton Head, in company with several wooden gunboats and half a dozen schooners. The Ericsson had also just arrived from New-York with a machine in tow, understood to be intended for clearing channels of torpedoes and other obstructions. The destination of the expedition is left to conjecture.

Rebel reports received in Murfreesboro are to the effect that Grenada, Miss., is in possession of National forces, and that Gen. GRANT'S forces are surrounding Vicksburgh. Grenada is in Yallabusha County, 113 miles north of Jackson, and is situated on the left bank of the Yallabusha River, at the junction of the Mississippi Central and the New-Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad. It may be possible that the Yazoo Pass Expedition, or a portion of it, has taken this direction. The report that Gen. GRANT is surrounding Vicksburgh probably grows out of the success of the expedition through the Sunflower into the Yazoo. Memphis dispatches state positively that it has been successful, that it has arrived safely at its destination, and that a large force, under Gen. SHERMAN, had landed above Haines' Bluff.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate yesterday, the Quarantine bill introduced by Mr. MURPHY was reported from Committee, with an amendment providing that the approval of the Commissioner of the Land Office must be obtained, so far as regards the location and cost of buildings. A bill repealing the Militia law of last year was introduced. The bill providing for the acknowledgment of instruments in writing by persons in foreign countries was passed. During the evening session a communication was received from the Governor relating to the State Hospital Fund. He states that the fund of $30,000 is half expended; that the system is imperfect, and recommends a change and larger appropriations.

In the Assembly, a large number of bills were passed, among them the one relative to the City Court in Brooklyn; the Flatbush-avenue (Brooklyn) Improvement bill, and the one relative to piers in New-York. The others were of no particular importance. The Grinding Committee reported several bills complete during the evening session. Mr. DEAN offered a preamble and resolution against other States recruiting troops in New-York, but it was tabled with his consent. The Susquehannah Railway bill was ordered to a third reading.

GENERAL NEWS.

Last evening a large loyal meeting was held at the New Tabernacle Church, Jersey City. Speeches were made by Rev. J. MILTON HOLMES, E. N. DICKERSON and JAMES T. BRADY, and unbounded enthusiasm was manifested by the audience.

About 2½ o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mr. EMERY PURDY, of the firm of PURDY & TYSON, merchants, doing business at No. 36 Bowery, was found dead in his store, under circumstances which rendered it evident that death had been produced by his having cut his own throat with a pen-knife. Coroner WILDEY was notified and will hold an inquest upon the body this morning. The deceased was 66 years of age. His friends believe that he was laboring under a temporary aberration of mind at the time he committed the deed.

The price of Gold was 4 ₩ cent. higher yesterday than on Saturday, and Stocks generally up on the Share list 1@2 ₩ cent. The market closed steady in the afternoon, after an exciting day and a large business. Exchange 162 ₩ cent.

In view of the rise in Gold and Sterling Exchange yesterday, the demand for Breadstuffs was more active, especially for Flour, and prices of the principal kinds were decidedly firmer. Provisions were also more sought after; Hog products were dearer. The Grocery trade exhibited increased animation and firmness. Cotton advanced materially, with a fair inquiry. Whisky was in moderate request, at uniform rates. The principal Freight engagements consisted of provisions for British ports. The changes in other branches of trade were unimportant.

The Cattle market at Forty-fourth-street was supplied with 3,100 bullocks yesterday, and about 300 more are expected to-day. Excepting two or three droves of first quality cattle, they ranged from fair to quite ordinary in flesh. The demand was good, and nearly all were sold before 3 o'clock P. M. Prices were a little higher than one week ago, most of the stock selling for 10c.@12c. ₩ lb. net, or dressed weight. A few premium bullocks brought 13c.@14c. Sheep are 1c. ₩ lb. lower, owing to the heavy decline on wool.

The Copperheads Before the British Minister.

It is well remembered with what displeasure the Copperhead organs received the high-toned and emphatic response of Secretary SEWARD to the mediatory propositions of the French Emperor. So far as they dared, they denounced its spirit and its tenor, and in terms that made it morally certain that they were really in favor of foreign intervention as a means of terminating the war. Difficult as it was to believe that men who called themselves American citizens could be so lost to American spirit as to favor European interference, yet the tone of the complaints toward Secretary SEWARD, we felt at the time, could have no other animus; and we stigmatized it accordingly. An effort was made by these recreants to deny all such feeling; but it satisfied no fair mind.

Confirmation now comes from an unexpected quarter. Among the papers relating to American affairs, recently submitted to Parliament, is a dispatch sent by the British Minister at Washington concerning the Democratic victories in the Fall elections, as affecting the future policy of the Government. That dispatch we give in full in another column. It will richly repay perusal. Its special significance lies in the fact that the Democratic leaders in New-York sought interviews with this Minister on his first return from England, with the subject of foreign mediation "uppermost in their minds." Lord LYONS states that many of them seemed to think that this mediation must come at last, but that the matter must be managed with great caution, lest it "afford the Republican party a means of reviving the violent war spirit." "They appeared," says Lord LYONS, "to regard the present moment as peculiarly unfavorable for such an offer, and indeed to hold that it would be essential to the success of any proposal from abroad, that it should be deferred until the control of the Executive Government should be in the hands of the Conservative party." He goes on to say:

> "It is with reference to such an armistice as they desire to obtain, that the leaders of the Conservative party regard the question of foreign mediation. They think that the offer of mediation, if made to a radical Administration, would be rejected; that, if made at an unpropitious moment, it might increase the virulence with which the war is prosecuted. If their own party were in power, or virtually controlled the Administration, they would rather, if possible, obtain an armistice without the aid of foreign Governments, but they would be disposed to accept an offer of mediation if it appeared to be the only means of putting a stop to hostilities. They would desire that the offer should come from the Great Powers of Europe conjointly; and, in particular, that as little prominence as possible should be given to Great Britain."

What a spectacle! These so-called Democratic chiefs seeking an interview, hat in hand, with the Minister of England, and craving him to be patient until they got into power, when they would be happy to join with England and the other European Powers to put a stop to the war! It is enough to make every American hang his head for shame. We have had a poor opinion of the Copperhead leaders in this State, but we own we were not prepared for this. We would not believe it, were not the diplomatic document itself before us as officially printed. We knew that these men were base enough to treat with the Southern rebels on the basis of a division of the Republic, but we did not suppose that even they were capable of going so far as to invite foreign Powers to aid them in this sacrilegious work. The other is simple treason, but this is an abjuration of every American feeling. It is not merely a desertion of the Republic, but is a groveling at the foot of thrones.

It is easy now to see why the Copperheads were so displeased with the peremptory refusal of Secretary SEWARD to entertain the proffer of mediation. They were not only willing, as we had supposed, that such mediation should take place, but, as we had not supposed, had already given the British Minister to understand that they would actually join in it so soon as they found the opportunity. The answer of Mr. SEWARD was a finality. Its unqualified language made it absolutely certain that, whatever might be the party majority in the next Congress, so long as this Administration was in power no foreign interference or interposition in any shape would be tolerated. The promising programme which the Copperhead leaders had so humbly submitted to Lord LYONS, shriveled to nothing. Not until the 4th of March, 1865, when they might have a tool of their own in the Executive chair, could they and the foreign potentates safely treat with the rebellion; and long ere that time the rebellion would, in all probability, be beyond all mortal help. Secretary SEWARD resolutely shut the door in the face of these foreign intermeddlers and these domestic renegades. The former bore it with very good spirit, because, in their hearts, they could not but respect the act. The latter had sunk to such a depth of vileness that they had lost all faculty of respecting anything.

Lord LYONS, who really seems to have borne himself very well, considering the nature of the "Democratic" advances, had made up his mind long previous to Mr. SEWARD'S response to the French Minister as to what would be the fate of any offer of mediation to this Administration. In this dispatch, which was written more than two months previous to Mr. SEWARD'S reply, he says:

> "Such an offer would in all probability be rejected by the President, who appears to have thrown himself into the arms of the extreme Radical party. The views of that party are clear and definite. They declare that there is no hope of reconciliation with the Southern people; that the war must be pursued, per fas et nefas, until the disloyal men of the South are ruined and subjugated, if not exterminated; that not an inch of the old territory of the Republic must be given up; that foreign intervention, in any shape, must be rejected and resented."

It suits Lord LYONS throughout the whole dispatch to style the party whose leaders had been in conference with him as the "Democratic" and "Conservative," and "Peace" Party—and their opponents as "Radicals." This application of names is somewhat singular, but of little consequence. What deserves attention is the strong language he uses in respect to the determination of the supporters of the Administration and the friends of the war never to consent to "foreign intervention in any shape." It is as much a matter of pride to us that the War Party had impressed his lordship with such a sense of their high, unflinching national spirit, as it is a matter of humiliation that the Peace party should have presented itself before him in such utter abjectness. If there is a particle of nobility in his nature—and we know there is much of it—it must have recoiled in loathing from creatures, calling themselves Americans, thus forward to barter away their birthright. Esau's venality in this line has been deemed about the worst on human record. But Esau did not first propose, he was solicited—and he sold to his brother, not to the Philistines.

Loyalty and Disloyalty.

There could hardly be a stronger or better testimony to the strength and vigor of our political system than is afforded just now by the sayings and doings of the faction, who claim for themselves the status and honors of a lawful "opposition." They have, at least, this use, if they have no other. There is not one of their journals or orators that is not a standing proof of the moderation of the people, of the supremacy of the laws, and of the solidity of the Government. If we wanted to give a foreigner a fair notion of our good sense, or our patriotism, or our clear-headedness, or our discretion, we certainly should take good care not to put the newspapers that sympathize with secession into his hands, and not to let him hear "a lecture" at either Mozart Hall, or the other "Democratic Union Association." But if we wanted to prove to him how free we were, how patient and magnanimous we were, how well the laws and the Constitution were maintained and respected, we should certainly administer to him, night and morning, as large doses as he could be got to swallow of WOOD'S theories and BROOKS' jurisprudence. He must have the stomach of an ostrich and the brains of an ass, who, after having even once digested a mixture of this sort, could refuse to acknowledge the health and vigor of a system which can absorb a greater or less quantity of this same "stuff" every day all the year round.

For this reason we do not deprecate in the least the hostility of these agitators to the Administration, on behalf of what they call "free speech." We could not possibly find better proofs of the falsehood of their charges than the charges themselves. Every hour's declamation against all restrictions on the liberty of discussion which now pours from their stumps is the best possible proof that there are no such restrictions. There is an absurdity about denunciations of "a despotism," delivered with open doors in the territory of the despot, and under the protection of his police, and with every circumstance of éclat and publicity which ingenuity can invent or money can supply, which any but a Copperhead politician would see, and which everybody but Copperhead politicians does see.

If the Loyal Leagues want to prove to the world that the base faction, who, after having in vain attempted to ruin their country, now seek to traduce and degrade it, enjoy as much leisure for their tongues and pens as they can possibly need, even for their imaginations, they have only to circulate, as "loyal documents," the howlings of the Copperhead Press and orators against arbitrary restrictions on their own railing and vituperation. We are not sure but that a speech of Mr. WOOD, and a letter from Prof. MORSE, would, if well circulated, do more to vindicate the Administration, and sustain the war, than anything which loyal writers are likely to produce.

Their discourses on the meaning and object of "loyalty," with which they are just now deluging the country, are as striking examples of their muddleheadedness as of their bad animus. We believe it was that eminent publicist and philologist, FERNANDO WOOD, who found out for his associates where the word came from, and explained to them why it was it could have no place either in his vocabulary or that of his betters. His discovery that it was of English origin, and bears in England a sense which renders it unsuitable here, has since been adopted by the whole tribe of political quacks, who, after having helped to plunge the nation into a slough of moral degradation, have now issued forth to denounce and hinder her in her struggles to get out. "Loyalty," they say, may do for the slaves of VICTORIA, but in the breasts of the would-be vassals and "hyenas" of JEFFERSON DAVIS, there can be no such feeling. Those who kneel to the sceptre of a constitutional monarch, may be "loyal;" but that those who would fain kneel down and kiss the cowhide, and the "paddle," and the boot-toe, should be thought capable of any such feeling toward a government elected, upheld and defended by the vast majority of their own free white countrymen, is, forsooth, foul scorn. England is the only country in Europe in which loyalty is used in a political sense, but the notion that any man in England, whatever his rank or to whatever party he belongs, means, by loyalty to the Government, anything that those who use it here mean and may mean, is ridiculously untrue. The veriest Tory in existence, when he says that his loyalty is "unconditional," and that, to prove it, he would suspend the habeas corpus act, close the Courts, shut up the printing-offices, envelop the land in flames and flood it with blood, means precisely what we mean—not that he is prepared to stand by the Queen or the Minister in an attempt to overthrow the Constitution, but that he will stand by them in all efforts to save the nation and the Government, no matter at what temporary sacrifice or hazard. Loyalty does not mean in England, and has not meant in anybody's mouth since the time of CHARLES I., unconditional devotion to any man or set of men. But the English people are, however, too familiar with that distinction between the Government and the men who administer it, for it ever to be possible for any set of demagogues to use it as it is now being used here for their delusion and discomfiture. They have passed through several crises such as this of ours, and, however carefully they may, in times of profound peace, dwell upon it in their speeches and writings, they are too wise to allow it to paralyze the public force in times of tremendous public peril. That distinction is in free Governments one that should be carefully kept in mind; but, like many other distinctions in the constitutional system, and, in fact, like the whole system itself, it depends for its value or its harm on the knowledge, temper and discretion of those who have it in charge. It is the right and duty of the majority, to decide when it shall be observed, and when it shall be overlooked. To allow every knave, or charlatan, or traitor, or other criminal, who can mount a stump to intrench himself behind it, would be to inaugurate anarchy. We should have thieves arming themselves for their protection against the police, and declaring that while they reverenced the law, they held the Judges and the Sheriff in contempt and abhorrence. We should have soldiers declaring that while they adored the Constitution they contemned and repudiated, and would not obey, either the President or their commanding officer. The illustrious BROOKS has furnished a striking example of what the views of his school are as to the nature of this "distinction," by solemnly and publicly releasing the whole army from obedience to its officers, after the issue of the Emancipation Proclamation. And if the public were only insane enough to let him and his confederates have their way, we should have millions of private expounders of the Constitution scattered over the country, "distinguishing" between the Government and those who administer it, with such delightful clearness as to enable them to follow their own sweet wills in the commission of every species of crime and folly.

Port Hudson.

The contradictory rumors which we have been receiving for a fortnight past, through rebel and other sources, from Port Hudson and the Lower Mississippi, are cleared up this morning by the very interesting and lucid letters we publish from the scene of action. The movements of Gen. BANKS' army and FARRAGUT'S navy, first in the direction of Port Hudson, and afterward back to Baton Rouge, are set forth as being the carrying out of a plan to push part of our navy beyond Port Hudson up the Mississippi, with the view of gaining control of that part of the river not previously in our hands, as well as of the Red River and the region from which the rebel armies in the Mississippi Valley obtain their supplies. Gen BANKS' flank movement by land was not, it seems, intended to prelude a direct assault upon the enemy's works, but to divide and divert their attention while FARRAGUT was effecting his part of the plan. As soon as news reached Gen. BANKS that the Hartford and Albatross had passed Port Hudson, he telegraphed to the officer in immediate command of the land force that the object of the expedition was accomplished, and ordered him to return leisurely to Baton Rouge. The idea seems to have been comprehended in the fleet itself, as will appear from the letter of a clergyman written on board the sloop-of-war Richmond. This is not exactly what the public had been led to anticipate. A combined assault in force on the rebel works had been generally advertised as about to come off, and a victorious reduction of the rebel stronghold was expected. For that, it seems, we must wait a little longer. But, as it is, we met with a gratifying success, and one whose results may be as great and wide-reaching as would have come from a storming of the rebel fortifications. With fleets above and below Vicksburgh and Port Hudson, the whole river, excepting those points, is now in our hands.

The splendid heroism of the commander, officers and men of the destroyed vessel Mississippi, will command the admiration of the whole world. Such deeds amply sustain the traditional and cotemporary glory of our Navy, and will live in story and history for centuries.

THE POLICE AND THE SUNDAY DRAM-SELLERS.—The Superintendent of Police claims just honors for his Department for "the good order in this City and Brooklyn on the Sabbath day," since the laws against the Sunday Liquor traffic have been enforced—"making an era in the history of both these cities." "It is desirable that the same good order should be preserved in time to come," says the Superintendent; and what citizen who does not profit by rum-selling will question the fact? There have been too many demonstrations of unity of sentiment in this matter to doubt that decent men of all parties and creeds desire and are determined to have an orderly Sunday in New-York.

The Police authorities seem to have recovered the ground from which the decisions of Recorder HOFFMAN and the Supreme Court dislodged them, by falling back on the unquestioned civil penalty for "publicly keeping," and the criminal penalty for selling liquors on Sunday. The joint powers of the Metropolitan Police act and the Excise law are certainly ample for the restraint of this class of wrong-doers; and the public have a right to demand that the full penalty of the law shall be visited on the men who persist in wrong-doing. If there be reluctance on the part of some "public officers," whom Mr. KENNEDY thinks it "would be needless to refer to," in enforcing the law against their particular constituents, it is to be hoped that complaints will be lodged with others who are known to be faithful to public interests. We shall not always be afflicted, we trust, with derelict Judges and Justices; and the time may come when the oath of office will be considered more binding than secret pledges before election to lawless conspirators to resist the laws and control the administration of law. Meanwhile, let the Police authorities do their whole duty in this matter, assured that the law-abiding, tax-paying community will stand by them to the last.

Amusements.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The performance of "Semiramide," last evening, was all that a lover of mere vocalism could desire. Signor BIACHI, as Assur, rollicked in the roulades of his part as blithely as an infant in its nurse's arms; Mlle. SULZER, in her tremendous scena of the first act, displayed an excellent executive ability; Mme. GUERRABELLA, as Semiramide, expressed her emotions in the most accurate of periods, and Signor MINETTI demonstrated that he is a good pupil of the school of ROSSINI. We think in vain of a part that was not well interpreted; and yet the performance lacked spirit. The opera has never been a successful one here, although one of the best the maestro ever wrote. To explain this we must look at the libretto, and here we find a lamentable lack of action. The first act (subdivided into two acts last evening) might be played in a concert-room, so little does the scene add to the illusion. This defect is a radical one, and becomes in the end a bore—especially with a public not thoroughly familiar with the music. And so, although the artists we have named were excellent, the performance dragged, and failed to elicit that warm response which the excellence of the singing really deserved. Of the Assur of Signor BIACHI, we have no hesitation in saying it is the best vocally we have ever heard. In mere facility of execution, nothing better could be desired; but apart from an insufficient profundity of voice, it seemed to us that he lacked ease and repose in the part, and hence the breadth which comes of those two qualities. Signor MINETTI sang with exquisite taste; and the two ladies were good, but deficient in volume of voice. The orchestra and chorus—strange to say—were not up to the usual standard, although Signor NUNO, a most able and excellent conductor, presided in the conductor's chair.

To-night DONIZETTI'S opera of "Lucia di Lammermoor," will be played with Signor MAZZOLENI as Edgardo, Mlle. ORTALANI BRIGNOLI as Lucia, and Signor BELLINI as Ashton. On Wednesday "Norma" will be repeated.

Instead of a dull sacred concert on Friday, Mr. MARETZEK has arranged a grand gala Matinée for the following day, Saturday. At this festive entertainment an entire opera will be presented, and a series of selections from other operas, in the course of which the entire company, without exception, will appear in those parts in which they have achieved the most brilliant success.

FROM THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

Sports and Pastimes of the Army—Its Spirit and Condition—Visit of Gov. Curtin.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HEADQUARTERS, ARMY OF THE POTOMAC,
Saturday, March 28, 1863.

Yesterday was another grand gala day with the Army of the Potomac. The lowering clouds that hung ominously over us the night before, threatening alternately both rain and snow, were dispelled early in the morning by a bracing wind; the sun shone forth in all the majesty of its power, making all nature smile. It was just such a day as revives the hopes of the misanthropist and elevates the spirits of the hypochondriac; makes the old forget their age, the middle-aged the cares of life, and exhilarates even the buoyancy of youth. The special attraction was near the grounds of the Second Army Corps, where races and other sports incident to such an occasion were upon the programme. The main stand was graced by the presence of a number of women, and there were also officers of all grades, and Gov. CURTIN, of Pennsylvania, and his suite. The stand (200 feet long) was quite a feature in itself, having been made from the materials of a pontoon train—the running gear being used for supports, and the planks for flooring. Three bands furnished music. The race commenced with a sweepstake, followed by a hurdle race, steeple chase, scrub race, foot race, race in sacks, climbing a greased pole, foot race, walking the wheel of fortune, and a fight between men tied in sacks. The attendance was very large, and, as there were the usual number of mishaps incident to such performances—none of a serious nature—the whole affair was hugely enjoyed by all present. The gay season, which has lasted for several weeks, may now be considered as about closed. The near approach of better weather warns all of the vital work to be performed. But of this more anon.

There are many persons, perhaps, who question the propriety of permitting an army in the field as this is, to participate in such amusements as have recently been permitted—fearing a relaxation in discipline, and a consequent neglect of the work on hand. The real effect is just the contrary to this. The commanding General has not only permitted these amusements to be indulged in, but has encouraged them by his presence, thereby giving them the dignity of official sanction. Man, in whatever situation placed, requires amusement—relaxation from the dull routine of every-day life. The soldier in camp, more perhaps than any other class, requires this, for the profession of arms thrives best under a certain amount of excitement; without it he longs for that which his nature craves, and involuntarily becomes morose and dissatisfied with his condition. The two blended, he is efficient, comparatively happy, and discharges his duty without a murmur. When the history of the management of this army during the last two months has been written, the commanding General will receive the thanks of a grateful public. A brief sixty days ago the army, while not exactly demoralized, was, nevertheless, far from being contented. To-day it is cheerful and hopeful, and but two things more are required to complete the sum of happiness—a visit from the paymaster, and then to be led against the rebel hosts marshaled to destroy the Union.

The visit of Gov. CURTIN was opportune, and productive of much good. He has felt the pulse of the army, and having witnessed the most demonstrative evidence of both the loyalty of the soldiers and their cheerfulness, he will be able upon his return North to give the people some satisfactory information. He has everywhere been received with evident signs of pleasure, and none of the troops manifested a greater interest in him and what he said than the regiments from his own State, a majority of whose members voted against him when a candidate for the office he now holds. The demonstration by the One Hundred and Fifty-third Pennsylvania Volunteers—composed principally of Democrats—was particularly worthy of notice, because showing how little soldiers in the field are influenced by the distractions of politicians at home. There is no political influence attempted to be exercised here, and the Copperhead letters received by individuals are publicly exposed, so that the writers thereof may be held up to the deserved contempt of his former constituents.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Monday, March 30.

REMOVAL OF THE REBEL GOVERNMENT.

Information was received to-day from Fortress Monroe, confirming the statement made in this correspondence, that the rebel Government is removing from Richmond all its military supplies, and is keeping up only a show of strength in front of our army at Fredericksburgh. Gen. DIX believes they are preparing to leave Richmond, and has so informed the authorities here. This is news. But we feel constrained to caution the public against the persistent endeavors to create the belief that the rebels in front of HOOKER have withdrawn, or seriously weakened their force. Gen. HOOKER affirmed to-day, what good soldiers will know to be true, that with the exception of the withdrawal of LONGSTREET'S division, LEE'S whole army is now encamped in the rear of Fredericksburgh in full force. They who think that Gen. HOOKER'S march to the Richmond defences will be but a dress parade, may be painfully awakened from their error.

A rebel officer who took the oath of allegiance to-day stated positively that the rebel leaders have determined to abandon Virginia as soon as they can do so safely. This, he predicted, would cause a mutiny in every Virginia regiment in the field. The rebel army at Fredericksburgh, he says, is composed mainly of Virginians.

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE GEORGIANA.

In addition to Admiral DUPONT'S official account of the destruction of the privateer Georgiana, private letters from Port Royal state that after the steamer surrendered her Captain treacherously ran her ashore, and all on board, 140 in number, escaped. She was a large iron steamer of magnificent proportions and structure, intended for the Confederate navy. She was brought here by a British retired naval officer, carried eighteen rifled guns, and was to be officered at Charleston and sent out like the Oreto. It was impossible for Capt. DAVIS to wreck and save her, for the rebels brought down heavy pieces on the beach and fired on his boats and at the Wissahickon. It was necessary to send a couple of gunboats and destroy the ship by shelling her. This loss of the Georgiana has been the severest the rebels have sustained during the blockade.

About this whole business of running the blockade, our commanders state that at Charleston it is done by fast steamers coming in under a full head of steam, and taking advantage of a dark night, fogs and gales; and boldly taking the risk, too, of a gauntlet of heavy fire from our vessels.

A NEW QUESTION OF EMANCIPATION.

A new question has arisen under the Emancipation Proclamation. There are at least five hundred negroes advertised for sale in Kentucky, under its internal police laws, who are freemen—fugitives from Alabama and Mississippi. A debate has already commenced in Cabinet meetings, on the question, "Can States, through local laws, revert to bondage colored men whom the President's Proclamation made free?"

THE ARMY REGULATIONS.

The Board of Army Officers called to revise the army regulations, have nearly completed their labors. They have made many changes. It is upward of twenty years since any alteration has before been made. Maj.-Gen. CADWALLADER, who has been on this Board, will be assigned to field duty as soon as this work is completed.

GEN. HOOKER.

Gen. HOOKER came up from Falmouth last night.

DISMISSED.

By direction of the President, the following officers have been dismissed the service:

Maj. AUGUSTUS HAIN, additional Aid-de-camp, for drunkenness.

Lieut. BENJ. F. SCEVA, Tenth New-York Cavalry, for allowing his command to be surprised by the enemy, while on picket duty.

REINSTATED.

Additional Paymasters HENRY FOOTE and WM. E. HAY, who were mustered out of service, by order of the War Department, have been reinstated, by direction of the President.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Monday, March 30.

THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY.

The Shenandoah Valley, from Front Royal to Berryville, having never yet been fully drained of its agricultural supplies, like other portions, may account for the reported presence in that section of Gen. FITZHUGH LEE, who was said to be lurking about Front Royal with his scouts and pickets, ranging down among the Bull Run mountains. They recently burned the temporary bridge with which our forces replaced the stone bridge over Bull Run, destroyed in the first campaign. There is no doubt rebel agents are collecting grain and other supplies in Loudon and Fauquier Counties.

THE REBEL ARMY.

Deserters recently from the rebel lines speak of the general good health of the troops composing the Army of the Rappahannock, notwithstanding the coarseness and scarcity of their food. The information of these deserters is limited, owing to the extreme caution of the commanding officers in preventing one brigade from communicating with another as to their relative strength, position, &c. Their impression is, however, that the army has not been largely diminished, and that the places of the old troops withdrawn have been partially supplied with new levies. The rebels are still engaged extending their earthworks all along the line of the Rappahannock, particularly toward Port Royal.

RECOGNIZED.

The President has recognized JULES LANG as Consul of the Swiss Confederation for the States of Missouri, Illinois and Kansas, and the Territory of Nebraska, to reside at St. Louis.

PAYMENT OF TROOPS.

The Paymasters for troops in North and South Carolina have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to repair to their respective stations, with money for our soldiers in those States. All of our troops will soon be paid to the 1st of March, $80,000,000 being required for the purpose.

LETTERS-OF-MARQUE.

A misapprehension exists as to letters-of-marque and reprisal. The Navy Department has nothing to do with the subject, which belongs to the State Department.

INDIAN AFFAIRS.

In the interview to-day with the Ute Chiefs, whose tribe occupy a portion of Colorado Territory, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs informed them if they created a disturbance with the whites a sufficient military force would be sent to put them down, whereupon the head Chief coolly expressed a doubt whether the Government has the power to do so. These Indians, though of roving habits, claim the ownership of large tracts of land.

FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

Rumors of a Secession Organization in Napa County, &c.

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, March 30.

There has been considerable excitement for the past three days in consequence of rumors that 200 Secessionists, secretly organized in Napa County, were about to make a sudden night attack on the Benecia Military Station and Mare Island Navy-yard for the purpose of capturing the arms and magazines, leaving the State nearly unprotected in the event of success. The rumors were so far credited by the Government officials that the steamer Saginaw was ordered to the Island Saturday, and the Benecia garrison kept under arms night and day. Nothing has transpired to confirm the rumors, but the officials appear to have information which is withheld from the public.

Arrived ship Rangoon from New-York, and the steamer Brother Jonathan from the Northern coast, bringing $60,000 in treasure.

FROM THE STATE CAPITAL.

The Democratic Policy—Plots and Counter-Plots—Schemes of Fernando Wood—Prospects of the Party—The Broadway Railroad.

ALBANY, Monday, March 30, 1863.

The Democratic household is a good deal exercised just at present. The reader of the organ, the Atlas and Argus, cannot have failed to perceive its altered tone of late, the modification of its veiws, and other indications of a changed policy. As the exponent of Gov. SEYMOUR, it has recently undergone disciplinary schooling, and its changed policy is the result thereof. Simultaneous with this, there has been held in this city the past week a meeting for consultation of leading Democratic politicians, summoned by telegraph and otherwise from different parts of the State. About ten days ago Mr. DEAN RICHMOND returned from the West, whither he was called in a state of alarm by the disloyal symptoms in the Democratic camp, which threatened with destruction the party not only there but more especially in this State. The meeting spoken of followed. The party is on the threshhold of disruption, brought about in this wise.

The 30,000 majority given for SEYMOUR in the City of New-York placed FERNANDO WOOD at the head of the heap, and Gov. SEYMOUR before the country as having gone completely over to that school of politics, and as having given himself up to the uses as well as the championship of that bold and dangerous man. That this was in reality the case was shown by the promptness with which, on the very day he took the oath of office, Gov. SEYMOUR responded to the demand of WOOD to take up his old quarrel with the Police Commissioners by initiating proceedings looking to their summary removal. No instrument in the hands of another was ever more willing than the Governor seemed to be in the hands of WOOD, who already rejoiced in the supremacy he had obtained, not only in the City, but in the State. He had long owned the Mayoralty; he now owned the Governor, and what is the use of owning a Governor if he will not use his power to reward your friends and punish your enemies? Submissive to the will of WOOD, elated with the success of the contest through which he had just passed, and encouraged by the reverberation of his own utterances, though (timid man as he is) spoken in fear and trembling, Gov. SEYMOUR suffered himself to be pushed forward by his adroit superior in the way that others saw led straight to speedy destruction.

RICHMOND, STRYKER, CHURCH & Co., gave the Governor wise counsel, and rescued him from the fatal designs of WOOD. The Police Commissioner matter was dropped, and WOOD with it, and they have not been heard of since. These Regency politicians, though as grateful to WOOD for what he had done toward the 30,000 majority as they are supposed to be capable of being, had little occasion now for his services, and were less disposed to permit him to climb upon the shoulders of the Governor to gratify his ambitious or selfish purposes.

The Legislature met. It was a part of WOOD's programme that Judge DEAN should be Speaker of the Assembly. That had been arranged after much tribulation and costly dinners, two weeks before. Though DEAN was voted for nearly or quite two weeks, and came within one vote of an election, he was in reality much further off from the realization of his expectations. His election was never intended by the Regency. One vote short was as good as a dozen, and had there been any utility in having the deficiency greater, it would have been. Whether Judge DEAN will ever be permitted to read the secret history of the contest for the Speakership, in which he was so conspicuous and deluded an actor, I do not know. If he does ever read it, he will be convinced, if he never was before, how illusory are all Regency promises, and learn never more to trust them.

WOOD's stroke was for the United States Senatorship—not now, for that was impossible; but at the hands of the next Legislature, in preventing a choice by this. DEAN's election to the Speakership was a part of his plan; failing in which, the non-organization of the Assembly was his next and characteristic expedient. In this, Mr. T. C. FIELDS was his principal instrument. This, though urged in the name of Gov. SEYMOUR, yet for the uses of WOOD, failed utterly, covering the party with the odium that justly attaches to the revolutionary proceedings attending it.

Next came the United States Senatorship. Having failed in getting DEAN elected Speaker—having failed in the revolutionary design of preventing an organization, which he sought to accomplish through his instrument (FIELDS)—WOOD next sought the indorsement of a nomination in the Democratic Senatorial caucus. He had never received anything resembling a State recognition, and he sought it now with peculiar earnestness. But the caucus refused. Mr. CORNING, the peculiar favorite of the Richmond Regency, was nominated, WOOD receiving less than twenty out of seventy odd votes. This was, perhaps, the worst failure of all—his only sympathizers being DEAN, FIELDS and a few select adherents.

Having killed off WOOD at the Capital, the Regency next set themselves about looking after the doctrines of the party; and the first thing was to purge itself, and, so far as possible, the party, of the Copperheadism engendered in the contest with WOOD. Valuable as was the 30,000 majority in New-York, it had been purchased at a dear price. A change of tone was decreed. DEAN RICHMOND, alarmed at the earnestness with which the party in the West had caught up and were singing the treasonable song pitched here to gratify WOOD, hurried to Indiana and elswhere to tell them that it did not mean anything, and to explain the secret and bid them quit. Gov. SEYMOUR, instead of following up his campaign avowals, or even the galvanized platitudes of his message, held his peace—partly in fear of consequences, and partly in fright at his own temerity in having ventured so far and in such company.

As a part of the purging plan, the Atlas and Argus changes its Copperheadism for the semblance of loyalty, and now talks as though it never counseled resistance to the Government or favored peace with traitors. The machinery of the Regency is at work through the State, and, to-day, the Democratic party, that in November rejoiced in the fellowship and efforts of FERNANDO WOOD, stands with its back fairly turned toward him.

Knowing this, WOOD is about to speak through Mozart. The Regency will be denounced for having been intimidated by the returning wave of loyalty, whereon ride VAN BUREN, BRADY, and many more of the best men of the Democratic party, Gov. SEYMOUR will be pronounced faithless to his pledges, and the old feuds and estrangements will be renewed.

This, as indicated by movements at the Capital, is, I believe, the present situation of affairs as they relate to WOOD, SEYMOUR, the Regency and the Democratic party in general.

The Broadway bill is undergoing a perfecting process in the hands of a Special Committee, charged with the duty of reporting it complete. When it comes up in the Senate, all the amendments voted down in Committee of the Whole will be renewed, and the yeas and nays demanded. In case they are voted down an ugly record will be spread out, to which Senators will not be likely to appeal. But the record will be appealed to by the people, with what effect will best be determined when Senators come up for reelection. He who votes a three million tax to pay bounties and support the families of soldiers, and rejects a virtual donation of $2,000,000 to that purpose, that the equivalent may be conferred on GEORGE LAW & Co. for nothing, will of course be prepared with a good reason—which will surely be demanded.

To-day Senator GANSON offered a resolution, which was passed, 15 to 5, instructing the Select Committee to inquire more particularly as to how many of the corporators are stage men, who are not, and if not, who and what they are. It is suggested that if they are not all stage men, they can be made so in a twinkling. The resolution may effect a delay of a few days, if no more.

Failure of the Rebel Raid into Kentucky.

Fifteen Thousand of Our Forces at Savannah.

General Grant's Forces Surrounding Vicksburgh.

CINCINNATI, Monday, March 30.

The rebel raid in Kentucky has proved a failure.

The Commercial's Murfreesboro special dispatch says: "The rebels report 15,000 Federals at Savannah, Tennessee, that Grenada is in our possession, and that Gen. GRANT's forces are surrounding Vicksburgh."

The Montgomery Advertiser contains a patriotic appeal from YANCEY, CLAY, CURRY, and other rebel Congressmen from Alabama, to the Southern people to plant corn and raise hogs and beef.

The reports touching the scanty supplies of the rebels are well confirmed.

The Advertiser publishes an official advertisement of the rebel Commissary, appealing to the public for food supplies of bacon, for which he is authorized to pay fifty cents a pound, or to give one and a half pounds of sugar for one of bacon.

Memphis dispatches say it is known for certain that the Sunflower River expedition has arrived safely at its destination, and that a large force under Gen. SHERMAN has landed above Haines' Bluff.

Suicide of a New-York Merchant.

About 2½ o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mr. EMERY PURDY, a well-known merchant of this City, and the senior member of the firm of PURDY & TYSON, dealers in leather findings at No. 36 Bowery, was found dead in his office, in the rear of the store, under the following circumstances: For some days past Mr. PURDY has been complaining of illness, and upon two or three occasions his friends had noticed that he appeared to be slightly wandering in his mind. He daily attended to his business, however, and no serious consequences were anticipated. Yesterday afternoon he appeared unusually depressed in spirits, and about 1 o'clock he announced to his partner, Mr. TYSON, who is also his brother-in-law, that he was unable to attend to business, and would lie down in the office, adjoining the store, and take a little rest. He remained there undisturbed for over an hour, when Mr. TYSON, thinking he might need aid, entered the office. To his astonishment, he found Mr. PURDY was dead. A pool of blood upon the floor, a small wound in his throat, and a small pen-knife lying near, afforded strong evidence as to the cause of his death. Physicians were at once called in, but life was found to be entirely extinct. An examination of the body was made, when it became evident that he had terminated his life by severing the jugular vein with the knife which was found near him covered with blood. Coroner WILDEY was notified, and will hold an inquest upon the body this morning. The deceased was a well-known merchant of this City, aged about 66 years. He was a native of White Plains, Westchester County, N. Y., but at the time of his death he resided with his wife and one or two grown children, at No. 274 East Broadway.

The Decline of Copperheadism in Indiana.

CINCINNATI, Monday, March 30.

The Gazette's Indianapolis special says there has been a great reaction in public sentiment in Indiana since the adjournment of the Legislature. No doubts are entertained of the prompt enforcement of the Conscript law. At no time since the commencement of the rebellion have Union men felt more encouraged than at present.

Great Meeting in Brooklyn To-night.

To-night, before the Young Men of the City of Brooklyn, Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER will deliver his great lecture on "What shall be done with New-England?" Maj.-Gens. FREMONT and WOOL have positively accepted invitations to be present, and will be there. Every preparation for a grand time—a refreshing season of the style of 1856—has been made, and doubtless the walls of the Academy will ring to-night for Union and for Liberty as they have never rang before.

SERGEANT PLUNKITT.—This armless hero was visited yesterday at the New-England Rooms by many of our benevolent citizens, including a delegation from the Brokers, and quite a liberal sum has been left with him. Many ladies have also called to add kind words to their liberal contributions. The Sergeant desires to thank them all, and the Press of this City, for the great kindness shown him.

Premium on Gold.—The Subscriber, who cannot change his prices with the fluctuations of gold without incurring enormous expense in advertising the changes, is compelled to sell his Pens at old prices. Thinking his customers entitled to the benefit of the premium on gold, rather than the Wall-street debasers of the best currency this country ever had, he now offers to all remitting the amount of their orders in gold, the full premium in this City on the day when received. In this way he hopes to do the country and his customers some good without injuring himself, for the MORTON PEN cannot be made without gold. When Paper Money is sent, United States is preferred over any other.

A. MORTON,
No. 25 Maiden-lane, New-York.

Premature Loss of the Hair, which is so common now-a-days, may be entirely prevented by the use of BURNETT'S COCOAINE. It has been used in thousands of cases where the hair was coming out in handfuls, and has never failed to arrest its decay, and to promote a healthy and vigorous growth. It is at the same time unrivaled as a dressing for the hair. A single application will render it soft and glossy for several days. Prepared by JOSEPH BURNETT & CO., Boston.

Webster's is the BEST DEFINING Dictionary in the English language.—HORACE MANN.

The ACCURACY AND EXTENT OF ITS DEFINITIONS.—WM. H. PRESCOTT, the historian.

In its DEFINITIONS—the object for which nine-tenths of our references to such a work are made—it stands without a rival in the annals of English lexicography.—London Dictionary.

Webster's definitions are distinguished by clearness, terseness and completeness.—DR. OGILVIE, Editor Imperial Dictionary.

Dr. Webster's Dictionary far excels all others, so far as I know, in giving and defining scientific terms.—President HITCHCOCK.

The Etymological part surpasses anything that has been done for the English language by any earlier laborers.—GEORGE BANCROFT.

In Etymological researches, he stands not only unrivaled, but alone.—North American Review.

I possess many dictionaries, and of most of the learned and cultivated languages, ancient and modern; but I never feel that I am entirely armed and equipped, in this respect, without Dr. Webster at command.—DANIEL WEBSTER.

I beg to adopt, in its utmost strength and extent, the testimonial of Daniel Webster.—RUFUS CHOATE.

Unquestionably the very best Dictionary of our language extant. Its great accuracy in the definition and derivation of words gives it an authority that no other work on the subject possesses. It is constantly cited and relied on in our Courts of Justice, in our Legislative bodies, and in public discussions, as entirely conclusive.—HON. JOHN C. SPENCER.

May be regarded as bearing the same relation to the English language which Newton's Principia does to the sublime science of Natural Philosophy.—ELIHU BURRITT.

Its definitions, now almost universally acknowledged to be unrivaled for completeness, accuracy, and the avoidance of mere synonyms render, it indispensable.—Rev. Dr. HUNTINGTON, of Harvard University.

The best and safest guide of the students of our language.—JOHN G. WHITTIER.

Has rendered any further research, or even improvement in our time, unnecessary in its department of instruction.—FITZ GREENE HALLECK.

The "American Dictionary of the English Language" is a work of profound investigation, and does infinite honor to the philological learning and general literature of this country. Happy the man who can thus honorably identify his name with the existence of our vernacular tongue. * * * This Dictionary, and the language which it embodies, will also perish; but it will not be with the gorgeous palaces. It will go with the solemn temples, and the great globe itself!—Chancellor KENT.

Of course, the chief merit of a dictionary consists in its definitions, and here Webster remains unapproached. The more we study him the more we are struck with his wonderful power of analysis and erudition.—London National Magazine.

The just principle of its collection, the thorough scholarship of its etymology, the clear analysis of its definitions, and good sense in its orthography and orthoepy, must make it for a time to come the NATIONAL STANDARD; for it is one of those works so true in its model and complete in its execution, that any material variation from it must introduce imperfection.—President CAMSON, Columbia College.

The best and most useful Dictionary of the English Language ever published.—London Times.

Dr. WEBSTER's great work is the best Dictionary of the English language.—London Morning Chronicle.

MRS. MAXWELL, FEMALE PHYSICIAN. No. 6 Greene-st., New-York, takes pleasure in offering her services to the ladies who are suffering from irregularities, suppression, &c. (from whatever cause produced.) In order to extend her sphere of usefulness, she has taken a large house, regardless of expense, and fitted it up as a lying-in hospital, where the most perfect confidence is observed, and all the comforts of a sick room are received. Also, Female Monthly Pills, price $1. And where the children can always be adopted.

SURE CURE—BY DR. POWERS, SUCCESSfully consulted with Dr. WARD, No. 12 Laight-st. Conducted on the plan of the Hospital des Veneriens, Paris, where those afflicted with any form of private disease can receive prompt treatment, without risk or exposure, viz.: Syphilis, gonorrhœa, gleet, strictures, ulcers, tumors, cancers, secondary and constitutional syphilis, diseases of the kidneys, &c., &c. Thirty years of extensive practice, exclusively devoted to the treatment of those complaints enable us to effect cures in cases where others of less experience have failed. Dr. Powers' Essence of Life restores the vigor of youth in four weeks. This marvelous agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitutions—physical disqualifications, impediments to marriage, thereby speedily cured. The men to consult, Drs. Ward and Powers, the champions and kings of venereal diseases, possessing the most certain, speedy and only effectual remedies in the world, guarantee a perfect cure, or no charge, in from one to three days. Established in 1840. N. B.—Those who have used their preventives are never without. Send for a circular. To Ladies.—Dr. Powers' Periodical Drops are a safe and certain remedy for monthly irregularities. The above remedies sent by mail. The afflicted should read their circular. Postage free, on receipt of a stamp. Cures warranted.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by DR. WARD & CO., No. 12 Laight-st., near Canal, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 28 years' practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and expense than any one can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call; it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much-neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance, failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to DR. WARD, No. 12 Laight-st., the only place. Call, send or write.

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP RESTORES the vigor of youth in four days. Restores manhood to the most shattered system. No. 3 Division-st., New-York, the only place. Beware of bogus Dr. Hunters. The City is full of knaves, up to every trick to rob Dr. HUNTER of his great reputation as a skillful and reliable physician. He has no other office but No. 3 Division-st. Established in 1834.

SOMETHING FOR EVERY LADY.—DR. WARD'S Great Female Benefactor or Golden Regulating Pills. Infallible in correcting, regulating and removing all obstructions, from whatever cause, designed for purely legitimate purposes—to restore the menstrual fluid—and they will never disappoint the anxious patient. Office, No. 12 Laight-st., where Dr. WARD can be consulted, confidentially, day and evening.

DR. JOHNSON, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY be consulted with confidence on private diseases. Thirty years in one specialty enables him to guarantee speedy and permanent cures. N. B.—Those who may have been misled by quack advertisements, nostrums, &c., can call on Dr. J. with the certainty of receiving honorable treatment.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has, for thirty years, confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases, without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases, when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb, unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians, in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great, that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it; and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 15 three-cent stamps, 300 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

Each bid to have consideration, must be accompanied by a sample of five full and complete cases of the Proposer's own manufacture, and must state where the manufacturing establishment is located, in order that it may be visited, with a view of giving assurance of the ability of the proposing parties to furnish the article required.

The said gun, when finished, to weigh about 10,000 pounds, to be made into a gun throwing a projectile of 100 pounds, as used in cast iron rifled cannon of like weight; to be fired 1,000 times with service charges of the same weight and kind of powder as used in the Parrott 100-pounder—viz.: 10 pounds of No. 7—without bursting, or wearing in such a manner as to cause apprehensions of bursting.

The quality of metal, price and other terms, are to be stated clearly in the proposal forwarded.

The Bureau reserves the right to itself of accepting or rejecting any of the proposals.

The time for receiving the proposals is limited to thirty days from date, and proposals will only be received from persons actually engaged in the fabrication of wrought iron.

From the Herald.

It is one of the best, most natural and most original plays brought out in this City for several years past, and it is splendidly put upon the stage and almost faultlessly acted. The house should be crowded to-night and every night.

From the Times.

Both parts were admirably sustained. Mr. Charles Wheatleigh, a true artist in every sense of the word, left nothing whatever to be desired. Miss Keene was equally excellent. Her scene with Betsy in the second act, was, in its way, a lesson to those artists who make night hideous with their unavailing howls.

From the World.

The character involved is not simply possible, but thoroughly natural. A vein of fine, sturdy sentiment runs through each act. The shiftings from one scene to another follow naturally. The situations are in good keeping with the correct taste that is displayed in unraveling the strange incidents in the life of the greatly wronged Jessie. The felicitous climax, though somewhat strange in itself, is reached most skillfully.

From the Express.

We do not know when we have been more interested in the personation of a character than we were on Saturday evening, with "Jessie McLane," the miser's daughter. Had we never seen Miss Keene in anything else, this would, in our estimation, have stamped her an artist of a high order of genius. She is well sustained by the auxillary dramatis personæ.

From the Evening Post.

"Jessie McLane," at Laura Keene's, has received a unanimous verdict of the most favorable character. The excellent personations of Miss Keene, Mr. Walcot, and particularly Mr. C. Wheatleigh, have greatly enhanced the appreciation in which they were already held by theatre-goers.

From the Commercial Advertiser.

It is a drama peculiarly adapted to Miss Keene's style, and is produced in a very handsome and unexceptional manner.

From the Sunday Times.

Miss Keene plays a most difficult part with surpassing grace and skill, but hardly receives the justice in the minds of the audience due to so delicate and artistic an impersonation until the last act clears up the mists which surround her.

From the Sunday Mercury.

Miss Keene's representation of Mrs. McLane is artlessly artistic, like everything she does. Mr. Wheatleigh, as the wronged McLane, and Mr. Peters, as a Cockney servant, are also excellent. The piece is well put upon the stage.

From the Sunday Dispatch.

It is an undoubted success. The burden of the illustration lies on Miss Keene, Mr. Wheatleigh and Mr. Walcot, Jr., although the other characters are finely rendered. Miss Keene has a part which is as well fitted to her peculiar power as any in which we have seen her since she made such a sensation in "Rachel, the Reaper."

From the Sunday Courier.

It contains a very touching little story, which grows out of the mines and mining life as gracefully and naturally as smoke curls out of a chimney on a calm June day. The scenery is what Laura Keene's scenery always is—of the best order. A view in the mines, in the first act, is gloomily natural. The piece should be seen.

From the Leader.

The new play of "Jessie McLane" is one of the best written, best put together, best mounted and best acted pieces that I have ever seen in New-York. By all means go and see it and send all your frends. The story is of the simplest yet most touching description; the language is chaste and correct throughout; the embodiment of the principal characters is such as would alone establish their reputation as actors, while the general construction of the piece is artistic and effective to the last degree.

N. B.—In active rehearsal, an elegant comedy, never acted here, called duced, at the time that fresh discipline is being infused into our troops, and we are only beginning to put forth our real strength; all go to make things look brighter and more hopeful to us, at this long distance, than they ever did since this gloomy cloud first overspread the country. God give our rulers firmness and energy enough for the emergency, and all must now go well.

On Board Steamer New-Brunswick,
At Sea, Sunday, March 29, 1863.

TOTAL LOSS OF THE BIO BIO.

Having sundry reasons to determine me, I decided, after completing the above, to be the bearer of my own dispatches, leaving to your other correspondents at New-Orleans the task of continuing the narrative of Gen. Banks' movements for the present.

At 8½ A. M. on Sunday, the 22d, I was on board the McClellan, which was anchored immediately behind the Bio Bio, when a sudden cry was raised that the Bio Bio was on fire, and on hastening from below to the deck, found that the fire was raging furiously on board the latter vessel, and already wrapping half her deck and rigging in flames.

The situation was terribly critical. The Bio Bio, (which had arrived at the levee, from New-York, only an hour before, and had not yet discharged her cargo or passengers, was crowded in at the wharf by the Crescent, McClellan, New-Brunswick, Columbia, St. Mary's, and three or four towboats; and, to add to the general consternation, one boat at least—the McClellan—the stern of which was almost touching the bow of the Bio Bio, was reported to have on board a considerable quantity of gunpowder.

The flames were spreading with such terrible rapidity and the vessels now lying together in such close proximity, that it seemed, for a time, utterly impossible to escape a general conflagration of all the shipping at the levee. In the midst of the din and turmoil, female shrieks were distinctly heard issuing from the Bio Bio, and a thrill of horror went through the multitude. Up to the time of our leaving, however, although we heard of 7 or 8 miraculous escapes, I am glad to say, I did not hear of any lives being lost.

Although Capt. Gray, of the McClellan, immediately turned a powerful stream of water upon the burning vessel, and the Mississippi steam fire engine and two or three others were rapidly on the spot, deluging her with water, all efforts to save the vessel were quite useless, and as the New Brunswick steamed down the river at 11 o'clock, A. M., we saw the luckless craft careen over, one shapeless mass of smoking ruins.

The Crescent and the McClellan, from their contiguity to the Bio Bio, were in a peculiarly dangerous position. The former, which was lying inside of the Bio Bio, had to back out. The McClellan remained so long before she made any effort at moving off (being closed in by other vessels) that her escape is really wonderful. The flames had actually reached her stern, and were only kept down by the most active exertions.

From all that we could glean before leaving, Adams Express Company saved but a very small portion of the goods consigned to them. The mail was saved, but the passenger's property and the general cargo were utterly lost. How the fire originated I was not able to learn, but it is generally conceded to have been the result of accident.

THE PASSAGE.

We left the levee at New-Orleans at 11 o'clock in the morning of Sunday, March 22, anchored that night at the bar, and left it the next morning (Monday) 10 A. M.

Immediately on entering the Gulf the weather assumed a threatening aspect, heavy clouds, accompanied by severe storms of rain, thunder and lightning, came onward from the north, and everything seemed to denote that we were just in time to catch the vernal Equinoctial gale. It has continued ever since alternating fair and foul, until we passed the redoubtable Cape Hatteras, when a stiff northwester set in and promised us trouble, but soon gave way again to sunshine and genial skies, now prevailing as we glide joyfully along off Cape Henlopen, within twenty-four hours of happy home.

THE NEW-BRUNSWICK,

during the whole of this passage, has proved herself an admirable sea-going vessel, swift and strong, and stood rough weather with an ease that surprised those who were not before aware of her qualities.

On Wednesday, March 25, Capt. Winchester, by the written request of a large number of the passengers on board, was reluctantly compelled to throw overboard the remains of Lieut. Obed S. Allen, of Quincy, Mass. NEMO.

IMPORTANT FROM PORT ROYAL.

Departure of Six Monitors and Several Other Vessels.

Arrival Out of the Ericsson with a "Devil" in Tow.

A letter from Hilton Head, 25th, says "This morning all the Monitors, six in number, left this point, together with several wooden gunboats and half a dozen schooners,

The Ericsson has just arrived here with a floating nondescript in tow, called a "devil." Its purpose is understood to be to clear channels of torpedoes and other obstructions,

THE MOVEMENT OF IRON-CLADS.

The statement of a person who came by the prize steamer Peterhoff, relative to the movements of our iron-clad fleet now in Southern waters, were of so suggestive a character that our reporter yesterday endeavored to discover the exact state of the case. It seems that on Friday, the 20th inst., the commanding officers of the Montauk, Nahant, Potapsco and Nantucket, received orders to "prepare for action," from the flagship, and that subsequently the Catskill and another craft not named were honored with similar instructions. Shot and powder were immediately so disposed as to be available at a moment's notice, final drills were inaugurated, and the general fighting trim put on. On Saturday, the 21st, orders considered of considerable significance, were received, and on Sunday the brief command "to sail" was passed from vessel to vessel. The cheers of the sailors as they left harbor our informant describes as perfectly deafening. He states, too, that some of the mailed vessels remained behind—one or two, he thinks. Probably the Weehawken delayed, as she needed some repairs.

As the person from whom these facts are obtained says he saw the ships leaving Port Royal, there can be little doubt about it. He knows nothing whatever about the destination of the fleet, but their movements could not in any case be judiciously published.

OUR PORT ROYAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Destruction of the Georgiana—The Pending Movements—Savannah or Charleston?—Mr. W. H. Gladding, the Alleged Spy.

Port Royal, Monday, March 23, 1863.

An informal report has been received by Admiral Dupont, announcing the destruction of another blockade-running Anglo-Rebel steamer on the night of the 18th inst. The name of the vessel is the Georgiana. I remember to have recently seen in one of the Northern papers some account of this craft. She was spoken of as lying at Nassau, with a very valuable cargo, and represented as being a superior vessel, pierced either for fourteen or twenty guns, and built expressly for the rebel navy. I believe that she was 800 tons (British) measurement, and altogether a faster, stauncher and better vessel than either the Oreto or Alabama. You probably know more about her, however, than we do here. From the information that the naval authorities have obtained, it appears that at about 12 o'clock midnight of the 18th, the Georgiana was made out by the dispatch boat America attempting to get into Charleston by way of Maffitt's Channel. The America sent a rocket in the direction of the steamer to point her out to the other blockading vessels, and immediately opened fire from her howitzers. Thereby the attention of the gunboat Wissahickon was attracted, and she, being within range of the stranger, also commenced a heavy fire from her eleven-inch pivot gun rifle and howitzers. This was too much for the Britisher. He was in a trap, and could not turn in the narrow channel. When the Wissahickon came within hail, he called out that he would surrender. Our brave sailors went on board as soon as possible, and found that the steamer was deserted, and hard and fast ashore on Sullivan's Island beach. She was where the cargo could have been saved by the rebels, but not by us, and there was no alternative but to destroy her. Accordingly, she was burned. When the official report comes in, we shall be likely to hear more of the affair. The poor rebels have not been fortunate, as a general thing, in running the blockade. I can recall the names of at least twenty first-class iron steamers, all with valuable cargoes, that have been captured hereabout and in the Gulf, since last Spring. Surely, John Secesh has no reason to protest against the inefficiency of the blockade. To every [illegible] wonder, in view of the innumerable navigable [illegible] and inlets along the entire coast of the rebel States, that the blockade is as perfect as it has proved to be. The vigilance of the navy is bringing it what it justly merits—both credit and prize-money.

Almost every vessel that comes here from the North runs in by Charleston bar, to see whether we have taken that doomed place yet. Everybody seems to take it for granted that the forces down here are bound to Charleston. Nobody knows, as to that, however, and, after all, Savannah may be first aimed at. In either case letters intended for the army and navy in my opinion, may be directed "Port Royal," as usual, for weeks to come. It is of no use for the people to be impatient. The commanders here will not be urged, by any kind of pressure, to inaugurate a movement until they are ready. There will be no hesitation in taking time where the delay will make the chances of success surer. Preparations are vigorously progressing, and though I am not able to speak of their nature, I can assure you that they are indispensable to the right result.

I saw by a late Savannah paper that the enemy was pretty accurately informed respecting the number of iron-clads, transports and troops at Port Royal. The information, probably, was obtained for them by spies who could visit us with very little chance of being detected. Indeed, it is believed that an emissary of the rebels is skulking in the swamp now upon Hilton Head Island, and a party of soldiers are in search of him. Speaking of spies, I am afraid that I did injustice in my letter (published on the 2d inst., I think,) to Mr. Wm. H. Gladding, the self-avowed rebel, who was arrested here en route to Savannah. I was informed that among his papers was evidence leading to the door of proof, that he was a spy. I have since been told that there was nothing to compromise him in that respect. Among his baggage were many articles contraband of war, which would have been of great value across the lines, and which could only have gone over clandestinely. That was all. Spy or no spy, however, the person who gave Mr. Gladding a pass to come here at this juncture cannot be excused. A man of his principles coming here at all looks, to say the least, suspicious, and he cannot complain of paying the penalty of his boldness by living in the guard-house.

The Gen. Burnside, one of the steamers that conveyed the negro troops to Jacksonville, Fla., two weeks ago, arrived this morning, and went at once to Beaufort, without reporting here. I am, therefore, unable to send you whatever news she may have brought. We expect that the negroes have won fresh Floridian laurels.

The drafting order recently issued by Gen. Hunter has inspired the plantation negroes with a soldierly furore. Recruiting is commendably brisk, and if it continues for a few days at the pace which marks its commencement, the ranks of the Second South Carolina Volunteers will be full. H. J. W.

THE EXPECTED ATTACK ON CHARLESTON.

A Beaufort, S. C., correspondent of the New-Haven Palladium says:

"Admiral Dupont expects to take thirteen of the iron-clads into Charleston, among the rest the great Ironsides; besides which he will take the wooden fleet that captured Port Royal, nearly fifty vessels in all. A land force of at least twenty-five thousand men will accompany the fleet, well provided with transports and the necessary lighters, flats and surf-boats for landing and making a sudden attack.

The siege train to be taken is probably the heaviest ever used by any army in the world, although not in number as extensive as the trains in the army of the Potomac. We have 8, 10, 13 and 15-inch mortars; 8 and 10-inch columbiads; 24, 32, 42 and 68-pounder James' rifles; 32, 56, 100 and 200-pounder Parrott rifles, with any quantity of smaller field artillery. These rifled guns, especially the Parrott 100 and 200-pounders are good for a range of five miles. It is not proposed to use them over 3,500 yards, which will be the greatest distance we shall be obliged to throw a shot. This distance is easily within the range of all the pieces previously mentioned, and the rifled pieces are able to hit a piece of twenty yards square every time at that distance, (nearly two miles.) So much for the preparations. Ammunition sufficient for three weeks continual firing is to be carried for both the fleet and siege train, so that there will be one long continued roar when we get to work."

Factors and their Liability—Effects of the British Corn Law on American Breadstuffs.

SUPERIOR COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justices Robertson and Monell.

Isaac M. Millbank et al. vs. Alexander Denniston et al.—This action was brought in 1847, to recover damages of the defendants for an alleged violation of orders, and other misconduct, as factors for the sale of five thousand barrels of flour for the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs did business in New-Orleans and New-York, and the defendants were a Liverpool firm.

Before the consignment of the flour, as alleged, the plaintiffs wrote the defendants that they were about to ship to them 5,000 barrels, and asked for their views of the market. The defendants wrote the plaintiffs not to operate to any extent in flour or breadstuffs, giving their reasons. But before this letter was received, the plaintiffs shipped the flour, and wrote the defendants, advising them thereof. Meantime the Corn Law bill passed Parliament, received the approval of Her Majesty, and took effect immediately.

The plaintiffs claim that by the conduct of the defendants they lost $14,500, for which they ask judgment.

The defence is that the order left the time of selling to the consignees, and that they sold on good faith, and to the best advantage. The plaintiffs reply that they directed the defendants not to sell under twenty-two shillings, until the operation of the new Corn law had produced its results. They also insist that the defendants had notice of the failure of the potato crop, &c., and that the early sale was, therefore, fraudulent.

The trial of the cause resulted in the dismissal of the complaint, and the plaintiffs appealed.

The Court, per Monell, J., now rendered decision on the appeal in favor of the defendants.

Edwards Pierrepont and James T. Brady, for plaintiffs; James Thompson and J. R. Whiting for defendants.

The Will of Commodore Levy—The Bequest of the Monticello Estate to the People of the United States Void.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Judge Allen.

Matter of the Will of Uriah P. Levy.—This was an action to obtain a construction of the will of Commodore Levy, in respect to the bequest of the People of the United States of a farm owned by him, and 200 acres adjoining it, at Monticello, Virginia, and also in respect to a bequest of $1,000 to the Jews' Hospital in this City.

The Court now rendered the following "judgment, declaring the devise and bequest of the Monticello estate, and the 200 acres adjoining, to the people of the United States void, and that said portions of the estate descended to and vested in the heirs at law and next of kin of the testator; also that the Jews' Hospital of New-York are entitled to have their bequest." Such was the indorsement upon the papers.

Mr M. S. FRIEND has matured a system of business that will meet the approbation of parties desiring to purchase stores, wines, teas, cigars, or, in fact, anything necessary for family purposes. Army and navy messes are supplied, shops and steamers furnished, and country merchants' orders filled with every article that may be desired, with promptness and fidelity. In his establishment, at No. 4 Dey-st., is a reading-room with writing conveniences, and a journal, where will be found the names, residences and destination of naval and military gentlemen registered. Here a steward may leave his order in the morning, and on going aboard at night will find the articles he desires, in better quality and with more punctuality than it would have been possible for him to have purchased himself. Mr. E. C. GENET, a gentleman long connected with the navy, will take supervision of the selecting and packing such goods as parties may order. We commend the attention of our readers to this new and novel enterprise.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretions or Abuse, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Dimness of Vision, Wakefulness, Pain in the Back, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruptions on the Face, Pallid Countenance.

These symptoms, if allowed to go on, which this medicine invariably removes, soon follows Fatuity, Epileptic Fits, in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say that they are not frequently followed by those "direful diseases," INSANITY and CONSUMPTION. Many are aware of the causes of their suffering, but none will confess. The records of the Insane Asylums, and the Melancholy deaths by Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion. The Constitution once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of medicine to Strengthen and invigorate the System, which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU invariably does.
